

THREE CHARGED WITH OLD MURDER

CORPORATION CUTS MELON

LARGEST DIVIDEND IN HISTORY CAUSES DECLINE ON FRIDAY

Speculators Make Millions Through Distribution

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The market price for common stock of General Motors Corporation dropped off somewhat at opening of stock exchange today after announcement of the largest stock dividend in the history of Wall St.

The opening transaction was at $202.50, off $1 from yesterday's close. A wave of selling was started and soon the price had dropped to $201.

Later a rally brought the quotation 202.75.

The opening decline had been expected since large stock distributions almost invariably are followed by an immediate drop in the market price.

Never before has such a luscious melon been cut for stockholders. Wall Street had not long known of the impending stock dividend. On March 12, the stock of motors sold for 113.25 a share, less than four months later—last Monday, to the exact—the price had soared to $225.75, a gain of $112.50.

The automobile industry so far as it is represented by General Motors, has brought untold wealth to thousands of queuing speculators.

The estimated value of the General Motors stock distribution was $590,000,000.

LABORER TRADES BEER FOR WINNING LOTTERY TICKET

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—A day-laborer's thirst for a stein of good, cold beer, netted the widow of the local inn-keeper at Bad Ischl, Austria, a fortune of $15,000.

The buxom widow is the winner of the big prize in the latest Austrian state lottery. A few years ago, her husband worked near Ischl as a miner. Today his widow is one of the richest inhabitants of the district.

The winning ticket was first bought by a worker, Johann Bart, at a little tobacco shop at the summer resort of Bad Ischl. But Johann couldn't conjure up enough patience to await the fateful drawing of lots. And so when he visited the local inn one evening, he decided that a glass of beer in the hand was worth an uncertain lottery-prize in the bush. Accordingly, he ordered a stein of Pilsner and paid his bill with his lottery ticket.

When the lots were drawn, the inn-keeper's widow was officially advised that she had won $15,000.

In order to console Johann for his loss, the widow invited him to drown his sorrow in beer for a whole evening—at her expense.

POLICE USE GAS

STUEBENVILLE, O., Aug. 13.—City police used a gas bomb to capture Charles Buchanan, who attempted to kill his brother and then fired bullets at police who approached his home to arrest.

Buchanan surrendered after the gas bomb was tossed through an open window.

VETERANS MEET

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Veterans of the 324th Field Artillery regiment will hold their fifth annual reunion here beginning tomorrow and continuing through Monday.

Included in the program is a memorial service.

EXPENSIVE CAMPAIGN

Dr. R. H. Dines, former Clevelander dentist, and unopposed Democratic candidate for Franklin County coroner, spent ten cents in his primary campaign, his statement filed Thursday at Columbus showed.

The expense was for two bottles of soda water for prospective supporters.

Dr. Dines moved from Cedarville three years ago after practicing in that village for a year.

Gives Blood to Save Patient

In an operation remarkable for its heroism, Dr. John Black, (left) of New York, opened his own arteries and transfused his own blood into the body of his patient, Francis Dalton (in bed), saving the patient's life. Dr. Grant Tisher (in rear), assisted.

MAY ARREST FIVE CANTON MEN FOR MURDER OF DON R. MELLETT

Ohio State Penitentiary Prisoner Gives Valuable Information, is Report—Will Ask Indictments of Five Monday.

CANTON, O., Aug. 13.—Joseph B. Roach, special investigator indicated today that five Canton men may be arrested soon in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher.

Roach and his aides refused to give any additional information or

VOTES HERE COST 50 CENTS EACH

Greene County's primary election was not an especially extravagant one and votes were not overly high.

Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections, believes upward of 6,500 voters went to the polls and estimated the cost of the election at about $3,300 for known expenses and miscellaneous items.

On this basis the cost of each vote would be approximately fifty cents.

SAYS TOBACCO IS WORSE THAN BOOZE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Tobacco is "worse than whiskey," Bishop W. A. Sellow, Jamestown, N. Y., of the Free Methodist Church, declared in an address at the 48th annual conference of the Free Methodist Church being held here.

"One who drinks knows he is a nuisance, but the man who smokes does not know enough to know he is a nuisance," the Bishop said.

Assignment of Ohio pastors for the coming year, began today by the conference.

WARNER EXPECTED TO SUCCEED SELF

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The newly elected Republican state central committee met here today to elect state chairman. Fred W. Warner of Marion was not a candidate and was not even present when elected state chairman two years ago, was actively seeking the place.

"I didn't want the job two years ago. This time I want it and I think I'll get it."

Opposition to Warner's reelection was expected to develop in the session.

TWELVE KILLED

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—The Regensburg-Munich Express was derailed today at Langenbach, near Munique, and twelve persons were killed, according to an official statement regarding the wreck.

Twenty-seven persons were said to have been injured.

WHITEMORE HANGS IN BALTIMORE; LAST OF HIS GANG TO PAY

Says Calm "Good Bye" Before Trap Is Sprung

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 13.—Richard Reese Whitmore, bandit, was hanged today. With his death the last but one of the Whitmore gang, depredations of which netted them more than a million dollars, has paid the penalty of crime.

Death, disease and prison have claimed the others.

Whitmore, who was 28, went to the scaffold almost unmoved at the prospect of death.

"I wish to say good bye. That is the best I can wish for any one," was all he had to say as he stepped to the gallows in the presence of a roomful of disinterested witnesses.

A doctor and a guard accompanied Whitmore. He smiled faintly.

The black death hood was pulled over his disarranged hair. The noose was slipped tightly about his neck. He stood rigid saying his last good bye.

H. L. Mencken, magazine editor, who was among the spectators, turned to the man beside him.

"There are mighty few witnesses here who could have spoken anything as calmly," he said.

There was a new stir on the illuminated stage.

Guards about the prisoner stepped back, leaving him standing on the steel trap. One walked to an adjoining room, where the lever to spring the trap is located.

The trap was sprung at 13:07 a. m.

Twelve minutes later Whitmore was pronounced dead.

Twenty-four minutes after midnight Dr. Albert Anderson, penitentiary physician, permitted guards to cut down the body.

ALLEGED RUNNERS OF BOOZE CAPTURED

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—Four men alleged to have been running liquor across the Ohio river by motorists from stills in Kentucky, were arrested by prohibition agents here.

The prisoners gave their names as: W. W. and Walter Muderbach, farmers near Coney Island; John Silger and Fred Radcliff, Cincinnati.

Fifty-five gallons of moonshine were seized when the men attempted to transfer it from the launch to a waiting truck at a lonely spot east of Coney Island.

Although heavily armed the men did not resist arrest.

CLERGY MAY REFUSE OFFER OF KNIGHTS

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 13.—Although there has not yet been any official declaration on the part of either the church or state regarding the reported proposal of the Knights of Columbus to raise money in the U. S. to aid Catholics here observers believe that the plan would be strongly criticized.

It is expected the higher clergy here, while grateful for any outside influence which might terminate the present situation would regret such a step by the Knights of Columbus, as a retrograde movement injuring the cause of the church in the United States and intensifying the determination of the Mexican government not to yield to mediation, particularly from the outside, observers say.

The clerk of Courts Harvey Elam, unopposed for the Republican nomination, reported expenditures of $5.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, unopposed for Republican renomination, spent nothing and received no contributions. None of the three successful candidates who have filed reported contributions.

Blanks for expense accounts may be obtained from Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections.

The clerk also reminded all successful as well as defeated candidates, of the state law which requires a report of election expenses to be filed with the election board, or with the secretary of state, in case they were candidates on a state ticket, within ten days after the primary.

BLAMES CRIME WAVE UPON PROHIBITION

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Chicago's deaths in gang warfare, and the crime wave engulfing Chicago are due to prohibition, according to Chief of Police Morgan A. Collins.

In a statement Chicago's chief pointed out that aided by big profits, bootleggers are able to shake the foundation of laws by bribery, by taking advantage of every legal technicality and through the apathy of honest citizens, in regard to dry laws.

FLYER UNCONSCIOUS

AKRON, O., Aug. 13.—Alfred Jung, former "ace" in the German army injured in an airplane crash Sunday, was still unconscious today. He is suffering from a fractured skull.

New York Suffers When Electrical Storm Fails To Relieve Heat Wave

By United Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—New York today experienced another day of the humid, sweltering heat which has prevailed for nearly two weeks and was climaxed last night by one of the most violent electrical storms in years. Last night's storm came at the height of the evening rush hour and resulted in a subway tie up that held thousands in the steaming black hole underground for hours.

The confusion and discomfort was almost indescribable. When the violent storm broke, the people scrambled four ways. Entrances were blocked, platforms jammed to suffocation and trains packed to the doors. In an hour 3.4 inches of rain fell. The subways were flooded, short circuits resulting. Despite the violence of the storm and the fact that lightning struck in several places in the city, police reported after a check up today that no lives had been lost in the Metropolitan area.

Two deaths were reported in New Jersey and one in Connecticut. Eleven pumps worked to clear the subway tunnels. Of the four tunnels under the river two were cleared soon after midnight but the remaining two were still impassable today.

For three hours the Pennsylvania trains were unable to operate west from the terminal. Eastbound trains were routed through Jersey City and passengers reached Manhattan via the Hudson tube and ferries.

GOVERNMENT PRICE PROBE OF GASOLINE UNDER WAY, REPORT

Result of Inquiry Is Being Kept Secret Temporarily

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The government's investigation of the price of gasoline—chief grief of motorists—has been under way secretly for nearly two months.

The federal trade commission today in its monthly report of progress, divulged this information without disclosing how its inquiry was being carried forward.

The investigation is endeavoring to discover "whether advances in prices are due to restraints of trade or conditions of ownership or control preventing effective competition, and to the profits of the principal companies in this industry."

The investigation was directed by a resolution introduced by Senator Park Trammell, Democrat, Florida, and adopted by the senate June 8. Senator Trammell repeatedly denounced the oil companies from the senate floor because of the price jumps which, he said, became effective every spring just before the tourist season opens.

OFFICIAL COUNT STARTED BY BROWN

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Counting of the official vote in Tuesday's primary was started today by Secretary of State Thad Brown to definitely determine the outcome of two close contests.

First official certificates were received late yesterday and others were arriving today. Totals, however, are not expected to be in before next week.

Figures will be necessary to settle several of the contests.

FIVE RESCUED FROM MINE MUCH BETTER; RESCUE JUST IN TIME

Heavy Rain After Men Taken From Shaft Filled Mine With Water—Living Tomb Is Now Deserted

SALEM, Ky., Aug. 13.—The vicinity of the Zinc and Fluoropar mine, from which five men were rescued yesterday after having been entombed for a week, was deserted today save for a few workmen who were removing traces of a week's rescue efforts.

The five men rescued were all reported in excellent condition this morning. George Catillo, the only one feebly suffering when rescuers entered the shaft yesterday, was sufficiently recovered to chat with friends and relatives today.

When Catillo was taken from the mine he was extremely weak and had a hacking cough. Friends feared he had contracted pneumonia.

Physicians diagnosed Catillo's illness as a mere chill aided by weakness from lack of food. He refused hospital attention and was taken to his home.

Veterans of the mining region here today said that the rescue of the five men was brought about just in time. Within a few hours after the rescue was made, a heavy rain started falling and continued for several hours. The water rapidly filled into the mine shaft and the miners said this would seriously have hampered all rescue attempts.

TOBACCO CAMPAIGN WILL BE LAUNCHED BY SALOON LEAGUE

Dry Workers Turn Prohibiting Mood On the "Weed."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A campaign similar to the temperance crusade which resulted in the eighteenth amendment will be launched shortly to stamp out the use of tobacco in any form officials of the Anti-Saloon League announced today.

The league particularly will seek legislation to bar women from smoking according to W. H. Mahoney, secretary.

"It will be a national calamity if the mothers of our children fall victims to the cigarette evil," Mahoney declared. "The race will retrograde and degenerate."

Plans for the drive against tobacco will be formulated at the second annual convention of the league at Winona Lake, Ind., August 25-27, Mahoney said.

The No-Tobacco League, a similar organization will hold its convention at Winona Lake at the same time, and it is probable, Mahoney said, that both leagues will unite in a single organization.

The Anti-Cigarette League, he said, will seek the aid of the National Parent-Teacher Association, which has gone on record against the habit.

SAYS DOCTOR LEFT NEEDLE IN THROAT

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—Miss Ella May Porter, Meadville, Pa., school teacher has been carrying a surgeon's needle embedded in her throat for nearly four months.

She charged in a suit on file in Federal District court here today.

Twenty-five thousand dollars damage was asked of Dr. Walter W. McKay, Warren, O., who was alleged to have left the needle when he performed an operation to remove Miss Porter's tonsils last April.

The investigation was directed by a resolution introduced by Senator Park Trammell, Democrat, Florida, and adopted by the senate June 8. Senator Trammell repeatedly denounced the oil companies from the senate floor because of the price jumps which, he said, became effective every spring just before the tourist season opens.

PREMIUM INCREASE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Increased by more than $7,000 over 1925, premium awards hung up for the 1926 Ohio State Fair total $125,721.00. This sum is by far the largest ever assigned for the purpose of stimulating entries and interest at Ohio's great agricultural exposition.

ORDER INSURANCE FOR TRANSIT FIRM

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The Ohio Transit Company has been ordered by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission to procure insurance covering possible damage to patrons or show why their license should not be revoked.

The company has run bus service since July 25 with no liability insurance, the order said. The complaint was filed by the Scioto Valley Railway and Power Co.

SEEK PROMOTER

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—A warrant charging conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law in connection with the Linndale beer investigation was issued for William Ferguson, flight promoter.

Linndale investigation began after Harry Parker, dry agent took charge of a truck load of beer which mysteriously disappeared.

AMERICAN SOLDIER WORLD'S BEST PAID

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The American doughboy's most highly prized distinction—that of the world's best paid and best fed fighting man—remains unchanged.

His pay envelope, according to a comparative table just compiled by the War Department, is eleven times bigger than the Japanese soldier's and its contents would pay off forty-one Italian or fifty-eight French men-at-arms.

The meal placed before one American Regular nowadays would have to suffice for 1.4 British, 1.5 Japanese, 2.4 Italian, or 2.5 French fighting men, according to the War Department announcement.

Only Great Britain approached the United States in the amount of pay allotted to the individual soldier. The yearly pay per man is: United States, $252; Great Britain, $240.90; Japan, $23; Italy, $6.20, and France, $4.38.

TWENTY FOUR TAKEN FROM FACTORY RUINS

VIENNA, Aug. 13.—Twenty four bodies have been taken from the devastated Weiss munition works at Budapest Hungary which was wrecked by four explosions and partially destroyed by fire last night, according to dispatches from that city. The dispatches say 300 injured persons, mostly women employees have been removed from the plant.

VILLAGE MENACED BY SERIOUS BLAZE

WEST MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Fire equipment from Bellefontaine and Kenton aided the local department today in fighting flames which for a time menaced the business section here.

The Odd Fellows building was destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $12,000. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

DOG RACING SPLITS VILLAGE IN OHIO

NORTHFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Dog racing threatened to split this Summit County village into factions. A few weeks ago the village council passed an ordinance for the regulation of race tracks. Chief provisions were a license by the mayor and the payment of twenty per cent of race track gate receipts into the village treasury.

There were no race tracks in the village, but now it is understood that promoters of a plan to inaugurate whippet racing in Northfield were back of the measure. The ordinance was passed at a meeting of council early in July, opponents say they had no opportunity to be heard and did not even know that such an ordinance was under consideration.

WIDOW OF MINISTER AMONG ACCUSED IN HALL-MILLS PROBE

Imprisoned Trooper Admits Being Paid To Disappear

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 13.—With three members of the Hall family held on charges of murder, the Hall-Mills case moved swiftly to a climax today.

Nearly four years after the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer sweetheart, Mrs. Eleanor Mills were found dead under a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm near New Brunswick, the state now charge the following with the murders:

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman.

Willie Stevens, her eccentric brother.

Henry DeBruyere Carpenter, her cousin and neighbor.

Stevens and Carpenter were arrested last night at the Hall home, where Mrs. Hall is remaining under $15,000 bond.

They were in the Somerset County jail here today awaiting a hearing this afternoon in the county court house.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Investigation of the four-year-old slaying of Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, near New Brunswick, N. J., shifted to the United States Disciplinary Barracks on Alcatraz Island here today.

That a former maid in the home of Rev. Hall, whose purported story is to be the basis of a new grand jury investigation of this double murder has not told many important details, was the declaration of Henry L. Dickman, ex-New Jersey state trooper, now serving a term at Alcatraz for desertion from the army.

"That maid knows a whole lot more about it than she has told," Dickman declared to prison officials, who questioned him after his name was mentioned in press dispatches from New Jersey.

Dickman admitted freely that he accepted money to "disappear" while the investigation four years ago was in progress.

"Of course I took money to shut up and get out. If I hadn't why would I have left there with two months pay as a state trooper sent home?" the prisoner is reported to have declared.

It already has been brought to light by New Brunswick authorities re-opening the Hall-Mills slaying probe that Dickman disappeared during the original inquiry with several months pay due him by the New Jersey constabulary.

Co-incidentally with Dickman's story, it was revealed that another prisoner whose name would not be divulged, also was in possession of facts concerning the maid's testimony.

Dickman, according to information received here had enlisted in the New Jersey state police under a false name and used fraudulent army credentials. He participated in the first investigation when Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found murdered on a ranch near New Brunswick but disappeared shortly afterward.

JETHRO'S WISE COUNSEL
GOLDEN TEXT: To each one his work. Mark, 13:14.
TIME: B. C. 1498, toward the close of the second month.

PLACE: REPHIDIM, in the Sinai region, between twenty and thirty miles from Mount Horeb.

INTRODUCTION: The great caravan of the Israelites had moved on through the wilderness toward their first objective, Sinai. The people complained again when there was a shortage of water. Joshua was victorious over the Amalekites when they clashed. Moses' family is now restored to him, since he did not bring them with him at first. Jethro the priest of Midian and Moses' father-in-law came to visit him and brought his wife and two children to him.

1. MOSES NOW A JUDGE: We can easily realize that the Israelites could not go on in an unorganized way, in their journeying, but must be highly organized so as to avoid confusion and delay, yet it was difficult to be practical in this organization because they had been in slavery so long and then they were continuously on the move. Civil government was arising. We often think that government is unnecessary and filled with a great deal of evil, as with human beings, but we must not measure the entire civil structure by that standard. With out law and officers to administer it, society would fall into confusion and anarchy if they were disposed of in any way. Government is an invisible atmosphere around us and a sky over us, and it is the breath of organized and orderly society and the vast roof over us that protects us from injustice and violence. We should not condemn our public officials as a class, since they are our own representatives and are as good as we are. "Moses said to judge the people" and this fact throws a broad mantle of dignity over all his class.

2. HEAVY DUTIES OF OFFICE: Jethro saw the result that would follow the heavy duties that fell on the shoulders of Moses and said, "What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou alone, and all the people stand about thee from morn to even?" "Thou art not able to perform it thyself alone." He then suggested that Moses call some of his associates to help him judge the people, in the small details at least. The strain of public office breaks many a strong man down. We can see the fatigue and physical effects of an office and business but we cannot observe the general weight of invisible responsibility and anxiety that overhangs all. The President and high officials are surrounded by heavy duties that we cannot imagine as a mountain is swept by gales that never reach the plain and that we never feel.

3. EXCELLENT ADVICE: All men need helpers because no man can go through life alone. The President has his cabinet, a general his soldiers, the foreman his workmen, in our complicated structure of society and civilization. We are woven together into an interlocking system where in each serves all and all serve each.

In our working together we must respect the rights, personality, wages and due reward due those over and under us. In this mutual relation of worker and helper we are all "members one of another" (Ephesians 4:25), and any spirit of pride and haughtiness, of domineering dictation, of selfish exaltation etc., should be far from us, and we should work together in a spirit of comradeship and fellowship.

4. STRONG MEN OF FAITH: "Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able, such as fear God, men of truth, hating unjust gain." That Midian gave a standard of judging and measuring judges than can be used today. One must have ability in order to administer the duties and responsibilities of high office. Yet ability is only one of the fundamental requirements because they must fear God, "such as fear God." All our great leaders have, with few exceptions, been men who feared God, and if a man boldly declared that he had no belief and reverence for Him, his path to high office among us would be practically and rightfully closed. They should be "men of truth." "I am the truth."

Only truth is right and good and will last. These judges are to be men who hate unjust gain, spotless integrity must be their robe. The same purity should pervade all our political, business and social life. We should provide things honest in the sight of all men, and keep our hands clean of all taint and wrong.

5. PROSPERITY AND PEACE: "If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure and all this people shall go to their places in peace." The natural result of such government, conducted by able men, who fear God and love truth and hate unjust gain, is prosperity and peace. Good government is one of the greatest blessings of all time and bad government is one of the greatest curses. Sin is social suicide and will cause the death of a nation. It is our duty to see that we select and elect able, God-fearing, truthful and just men for official stations, and that we be such people ourselves, and then we shall go to our place as a nation and have peace.

Then Pharaoh slept, and dreamed again. This time he stood in a corn field, and before his eyes, seven kine, and seven well filled ears of corn sprang up, and while he watched them, seven ears, thin and blasted, and seven thin and starved kine, sprang up beside the seven good ones, and swallowed them up. And once more the king awoke and the dream passed. But these things troubled his spirit. He was sure that they meant something that he should know, but he called all his prudent counselors and his wizards, not one of them could tell him what the two dreams meant.

Now when the chief butler saw them all at a stand, the thought of Joseph and his prison dreams flashed across his mind. He came and bowed before the king and told him how two years before, when he and his comrade, the chief baker, lay in prison, a young Hebrew prisoner had interpreted their dreams to them and how to each man it had happened according to this Hebrew's reading of the future.

Then the King and his guards, by order, caused Joseph to be brought to the palace quickly, after he had been shaved and dressed in seemly garments (for the Egyptians were scrupulous above all other people about cleanliness), he came and bowed himself before the royal throne. Then said the Pharaoh, "I have dreamed a dream, and none can tell me its meaning, and it is told me that you are wise and can interpret dreams."

And Joseph answered humbly, "It is not in me that the wisdom lies; God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace."

So the king repeated to Joseph the dreams of the cattle and the ears of corn; and when Joseph had heard them, he answered in this fashion: "His majesty's dreams both mean the same thing. God has shown His Majesty beforehand what He intends to do. The seven fat cattle and the seven full ears of corn means that God is going to give to this land seven full and plentiful years of harvests. And the seven lean cattle and seven blasted ears means that after the seven years of plenty there shall come seven years famine. So great shall be the dearth that all the stores laid up during the seven years of plenty shall be eaten up, and no one shall remember the seven years of plenty because of the great famine. As for the reason the dream came in two parts, is because God wished His Majesty to know for sure that all this shall surely come and that speedily. Now, therefore let His Majesty choose out a wise man to order the affairs of the land and let him have officers under him who shall collect each year in the time of plenty, one fifth of the harvest, and lay it up in store, so that when the years of famine come there shall still be corn to eat, and the land shall not perish."

How Long Since You Heard This?
God's promise Of Life Hereafter
Matthew 28

Now late on the Sabbath day, as it began dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord descended from Heaven, and came and rolled away the stone, and sat upon it. His appearance was as lightning and his raiment white as snow; and for fear of him the watchers did quake, and became as dead men. And the angel answered and said unto the women "Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, who hath been crucified. He is not here; for He is risen, even as He said. Come and see the place where the Lord lay and go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead; and lo, He goeth before thee into Galilee; there shall ye see Him lo, I have told you." And they departed from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to bring his disciples word. And behold Jesus met them saying "All hail." And they came and took hold of His feet, and worshipped Him. Then said Jesus to them, "Fear not, go tell my brethren that they depart into Galilee, and there they shall see me." Now while they were going, behold some of the guards came into the city and told unto the chief priests all the things that were come to pass, and when they were assembled with the elders and had taken counsel, they gave much money unto the soldiers saying, "Say ye His disciples came by night and stole Him away while we slept. And if this come to the Governor's ears we will persuade him, and avert you of care. So they took the money and did as they were taught, and this saying was spread among the Jews and continued to this day. But the eleven disciples went in to Galilee, unto the mountains where Jesus had appointed them and when they saw him they worshipped him; but some doubted and Jesus came to them and spoke to them, saying "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

INDIAN CASTLE WAS SHACK AMERICAN GIRL HAS REVEALED

(This is the third of a series of five articles written by Betty Kurlow, Chicago co-ed who married a Hindu and went with him to India where she experienced many hardships. In her first two articles, Miss Kurlow told how Abani Kumar Bose, who led her at the Northeastern University, Chicago took her to India and then sent her to his "Castle" in Barodi, East Bengal, because she had displeased a Brahmin priest.)

BY BETTY KURLOW
Written For The United Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Castle I had heard about in America turned out to be nothing but his old shack when I saw it in India. It was located in an almost unbelievable dreary expanse of rice fields. The house was large, dirty and entirely devoid of any convenience. It's dark corners were used for nests by large droves of bats; mosquitoes came in swarms through the iron barred windows; poisonous snakes coiled about the damp foundations; vultures flew in circles about the yard, waiting for refuse to be thrown from the kitchen, and—worst of all to me—tigers and jackals roared and whined outside the windows the whole night through.

Such was my husband's feudal castle, the seat of government of the Indian province of Barodi. No white persons were within hundreds of miles. I had no one I could talk to; no books to read—nothing. The natives stared. It was awful.

I was put into the Zenana—the Harem—where I was forced to spend three months while my husband tried to get another priest to hold services for the Boses.

And Abani, instead of writing to me, as he should have done, wrote to his brother—my jailer, telling speak him to be sure to hold me until a new priest was obtained at Calcutta.

During my stay in Barodi I was taken ill from the dirty food and the vile living conditions. I wrote to my mother, finally begging her to send me money so that I could come back home. I thought I would die—I even contemplated committing suicide. Finally, however, my husband obtained a priest who would overlook my being one of "the devil's own" and I was allowed to return to Calcutta.

My illness became worse and I contracted the dread Dengue fever—a native disease carried by the giant mosquitoes of the rice swamps. After hovering between life and death for weeks, in pestilential Calcutta, I began to recover. But my nerves were shattered and I looked "wrecked." My skin had turned yellow, my eyes were sunken, my hair straggly and I remained for some time so weak I could hardly walk.

My husband by this time was not the same man. He was exactly like any other well-born Hindu in the city. His wife was merely a plaything, something to be fondled when he was in a good humor and something to be ignored whenever it suited him.

But Abani was inordinately proud of having married a white woman. He took every chance he could to show his fellow countrymen how he could dominate me—how he could rule his American wife. I was made to wear native clothes, to live entirely with Indians and not even permitted to age.

ALL NATIONS TAKE PART IN CARNIVAL

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—More than fifty nationalities will take part in the coming Armistice Day celebration here which is being bulletined as one of the biggest events held in Cleveland in years. All foreign language newspapers here are giving the event generous space and representatives of foreign born Clevelanders have announced their approval of the plan.

DON'T ANNOY FIREMEN

URBANA, O., Aug. 13.—When his automobile caught fire, William Yates didn't bother to call the fire department. Yates drove his automobile over to the department. The fire caused little damage.

WASN'T WHALE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—Albert Alcorn defeated by Senator Frank Willis for the republican senatorial nomination today sent the nominee the following telegram: "Thought I was a whale. Went out where the whales were. Must not have been a whale. Congratulations."

OFFICIAL COUNT SENT TO COLUMBUS

Official tabulation of returns from the forty-seven precincts in Greene County for the primary election, was completed at the board of elections' office at the Court House late Thursday afternoon and the vote forwarded to Columbus by Earl Short, clerk of the board.

The official count failed to bring about any change in the unofficially announced results for county, party and state offices, although the vote received by several candidates was slightly greater or less in some instances.

Not in years were returns as slow in coming in as at the Tuesday primary and the compilation of the vote was equally a slow process. This is attributed to the heavy Republican and Democratic slates.

ANTI-KLAN DEMOCRATS CLAIM CENTRAL COMMITTEE CONTROL

Primary results indicate the downfall of the Ku Klux Klan from the place of political power in Greene County for the past two years.

The anti-Klan organization claims to have elected from thirteen to fifteen candidates for the Democratic Greene County Central Committee at the primary, which would give the Democrats not in sympathy with the Klan the balance of power after a lapse of two years.

There can be but twenty-four members of the committee. Date for reorganization of the committee, election of an executive committee and selection of a chairman has not been set. The official call for the meeting must be made by a majority of members.

Winning candidates for the committee follow:

Townships: Xenia—Raymond Wolf; Miami—Fred Dawson; Jefferson—W. L. Cline; Cedarville—Lawrence Barber; Caesar Creek—Emory Oglesbee; Sugar Creek—William Jobe; Spring Valley—Harper Linkhart; Silver Creek—J. M. Per; Ross—M. R. Ritenour; New Jasper—O. C. Shirk; Bath—Fred Shellabarger; Beaver Creek—J. Jones.

Xenia City: First Ward—Harry Donovan; Second Ward—C. R. Bales; Third Ward—H. A. Higgins; Fourth Ward—Walter Cline.

Villages: Yellow Springs—John Alexander; Spring Valley—C. H. Dill; Osborn—Henry Fisher; Jamestown—Bess Robinson; Fairfield—O. A. Wilson; Cedarville—J. E. Mitchell; Bowersville—W. W. Warnock; Bellbrook—O. M. Hook.

Rev. and Mrs. E. W. Hester leave Saturday for Circleville, O., for a week attending the Eastern Union Baptist Association.

Mrs. C. C. Turner and daughter Marietta left Wednesday for an extended trip to Michigan and Canada to visit her parents and other relatives.

Mrs. Lela Highley, High St., is spending several days in Columbus with her sister, Miss Jane Arney.

PARIS CONTINUES TO BE MECCA OF MANY TH AMERICANS SEEKING EASY DIVORCES

PARIS, FRANCE, August 13.—Discontented American husbands and wives already have surpassed the 1925 American divorce record in this old world Reno and more men and women are arriving every day to obtain quick and non-public relief from matrimony.

Since January 1, an even 150

American couples have been divorced here compared with the 125 who were divorced during the whole of last year. Americans lead the foreign field with Britishers with thirty five divorces, and Russians with thirty one.

Lack of publicity and speedy action are the main reasons why Paris has become the successful rival of Reno. One month is the average time needed to obtain a divorce here, that is if the petitioner is American. French couples can get a divorce only after three years of what is termed "separation de corps", or legal separation.

The procedure for the American is simple. He or she must be domiciled in France. Renting a furnished apartment or living in a hotel for a couple of weeks is amply sufficient. The courts do not bother whether there is collusion or not. That question is settled by summoning the respondent and asking whether he or she is willing to resume conjugal relations. A negative answer brings the inevitable decree, which becomes final one month after it is pronounced. The usual ground is desertion.

ARRESTED HERE FOR BEATING HIS WIFE

Arrested Thursday night by Deputy Sheriff John Baughn and charged with severely beating his wife, Cleophas Wood, this city, pleaded not guilty to a charge of assault and battery before Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Friday morning.

No date for his hearing has been set by the court. He was removed to the County Jail in default of bond to await trial.

The charges of assault are preferred by his wife and it is alleged he inflicted painful body injuries when he attacked her.

A SIGN OF PROSPERITY

If, as has been said, prosperity is largely indicated by the extent of travel in a nation, the outlook for the nation this year is most encouraging; as much so as is the report for last.

The railroads, it would seem, are getting back to something near to normal in operating conditions. Their business has done so well in the past year that voluntary reductions in passenger rates this year will exceed $55,000,000, according to the report of the committee on public relations of the eastern carriers. The vast sum quoted represents excursion rates and trip or commuters tickets in the larger of the eastern cities. It seems that there are more such tickets sold now than has been the case in the past eight years, with every indication that the number will increase, instead of decrease.

In addition to this the motor car trade of the country is looking forward to the greatest in its history, a prosperity which seems to be borne out by reports for the first six months which reveal great advances.

So it is that the country must be prosperous, for when a public travels it indicates that business is moving, that the people have money to spend and are spending it, and that all branches of labor and trade are being benefited thereby.

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

You don't know Dr. John Wilds. You don't know him because his name hasn't been headlined in the newspapers. But this doesn't mean that he isn't an important man. Dig through the files of old newspapers and discover for yourself how transient is the fame of legions who have flashed for a moment in the headlines and then dropped back into the shadows of the obscurity from which sensation dragged them for a giddy moment or two.

Dr. Wilds is really one of the most important, in the best sense of that word, men in America. He is a minister. For over thirty years he has been the pastor of a tiny church on Broome Street, Broome Street is in the heart of the turbulent East Side, that colorful, noisy, smelly, swirling quarter of New York where the immigrants whose children are to be "100 per cent Americans," if the steering is right, begin their life under the Stars and Stripes.

For over thirty years, Dr. Wilds has been making fine Americans out of material that didn't look any too helpful when he first touched it with the magic of his fine spirit, his serene philosophy. At the risk of appearing to be overly sentimental and a bit banal I want to say that Dr. Wilds is the most Christlike man I have ever known.

Twenty years ago Dr. Wilds received two strange visitors in the study of the little home the occupants on Broome Street. The visitors were gunmen, and in the trade they were known as good gunmen. They explained to Dr. Wilds that they wanted favors from him. He asked them to be explicit.

"It's this way," one of the gunmen explained. "We hear that all the regular outfits like the Macons, the Odd Fellows, the A.O.H. and all them layouts has chaplains. Well, we got one of the best gangs of gunmen in New York City and we want a chaplain. Do you want the job?"

Dr. Wilds took the job. For six years he was chaplain to that gang. He knew when "jobs" were going to be pulled off. He knew the men involved in famous burglaries and "stick up" cases. But he never squealed, never committed the cardinal crime of the underworld. Also he never preached to these gunmen for he is one of those paradoxical preachers who doesn't believe much in preaching.

But gradually these gunmen began to ask questions. They wanted to know "how this guy Christ figured things." Dr. Wilds told them what he thought about that guy and his "low down" on how a life should be lived. Today twenty-eight members of that famous old gang are honest, respectable business men in New York. Two are dead. One is in Sing Sing. What about it? Does Dr. Wilds qualify as an important person?

Two ruined truck drivers were recently engaged in an alleged wrestling match at one of the sporting clubs with which the city is dotted. They embraced each other fondly, whispered sweet nothings about the weather and the probable size of the house, wondered how long they could get away with such "murder" and stalled and stalled and stalled. The crowd wanted action. They didn't get it. Suddenly a truck driver who was still working honestly at his natural trade yelled down from the gallery.

"Turn out the lights," he roared. "They want to be alone."

R. P. A., columnist of The New York World, insists that they should now be known as "bobber shops." Be that as it isn't, the fact remains that a flapper who couldn't have been a day over forty-nine entered a barber shop. She explained that she craved a bob. She then annoyed the barber with instructions, criticism and small chat about the weather.

She remained in the chair for about an hour and a half while some mere men who wanted a five minute shave fumed on the sidelines. Meanwhile the paint of her features dried until she looked like an old doll dug out of some Egyptian tomb. Finally she rose from the chair, but after another look in the mirror, decided that the bob was still a clipped hair or two shy of being perfect.

"I don't like it," she pouted. "I look funny."

"Don't blame me, Madam," the barber replied wearily. "You looked funny when you came into the shop."

Today's Talk

ROAMERS OF THE FOREST

As human beings we do not understand each other very well. And yet it is a very simple process when a community of interest is established.

I often think of this in connection with our understanding of animals. Animals like human beings when they understand that they mean no harm to them. The dog and cat have long become companions of people.

The other day I stood in a great park and watched four little girls feed some ground hogs from their hands. The beautiful animals ran up and took their gifts in great glee. They had learned from long association with people who came into the park and fed them that these were friends of theirs.

How beautiful the deer is! I saw one leap through the woods the other day and the sight gave me a great thrill. I thought how very wrong for an intelligent man to kill one of these beautiful animals. I hope the time will come when there will be no killing of the animals that roam the forests of the country. They give something to the wild—a personality.

Today I watched a ground squirrel gather dry grass for his nest.

REQUESTED PICKLE RECIPES

"I never put up pickles, because my family does not like them," explained one of my friends. "But—how about your guests?" I was tempted to ask. For often a pickle or relish turns a "flat" meal into an attractive one to the stranger within our gates. The following varieties are popular; (the first two having been requested by readers):

Mustard Pickles: Use equal measures of cucumbers, green tomatoes, cauliflower and small onions. Cover the mixture with boiling brine made in the proportion of one cup of salt for every quart of water. Let stand twenty-four hours, then drain. Now cover with fresh boiling water and let stand one-half hour. Drain again and add to the following Mustard Sauce: Mix together one cup of brown sugar, one-fourth pound of dry mustard powder, and one-fourth pound of bread flour; wet the mixture with one quart of vinegar. Heat and stir till thick, add vegetables to it, then turn all into hot sterilized jars. Seal airtight at once and store.

Sweet Peach Pickle: Dip sixteen peaches quickly into hot water and then rub with a towel to remove skins. Pierce each peach with a whole clove and drop them gently into this sirup: Boil together one cup of vinegar, one pound of brown sugar and one-half ounce of stick cinnamon for five minutes. Into this sirup drop the peaches and cook slowly till soft. Can in sterilized glass jars, with the sirup poured over the cooked peaches.

Sweet Pear Pickle: Use above directions for Sweet Peach Pickle, except that pears are substituted for the peaches.

Indian Sauce: Wipe six apples and six large ripe tomatoes. Cut both in medium-sized pieces and mix them with one-half pound of large seedless raisins, one-fourth cup of salt, one large red sweet pepper put through food grinder, three large peeled onions also chopped, and two quarts of cider vinegar. Boil all together for one hour and force through a wide-meshed sieve then add one tablespoon of mustard powder and one tablespoon of ground ginger and boil till as thick as catsup be-

Greene County History

ROSS TOWNSHIP

Ross Twp. is probably the most level township in the county and has less waste land in proportion to its total area than any other township in the county.

It is essentially an agricultural community. There has never been a village in the township, nor has there ever been a townsite platted within its limits.

It has had a number of railroads proposed which would cross the township, but so far none have ever materialized, although one company got so far along the building of a road that its right-of-way was graded across the township.

The soil is a sandy loam with enough humus to make it very productive, while the farmers of today have made the soil even more productive than it was a few years ago.

Grape Grove and Gladstone are two embryonic villages of the township but neither has ever been platted. For nearly a century there has usually been a store at one of the other of two places, and for several years there was a postoffice at Grape Grove but since the establishment of free delivery service it has been discontinued.

Just Folks

BY EDGAR A. QUEST

THE OPTIMISTIC DUB

How merrily the robins sing!
How beautiful the sky!
Shall I regret so small a thing
That in the rough I lie?

The trees are in their summer dress!
The air like golden wine!
Then shall I sob as I confess
I'm putting for a nine?

There's more to golf than medal score!

It's good to be alive
On such a day! Am I a four?
No, bless you, I'm a five.

Just hear the Bob Whites round about!

How happily they call!
Oh, I won't bother holling out,
I think I've lost my ball.

How gloriously shines the sun
Upon the maple trees!
Now what care I that I have done
A pair of fifty-threes?
Nature sustains all golfing clubs

Beyond the slightest doubt,
For she it is who gives the dubs
Something to rave about.

The Theatre

There is some reason to believe that there are such things as kind-hearted cannibals, contemplative stockbrokers, sincere Congressmen, slender opera singers, stylish American generals, Nordic theatrical producers, well-educated debutantes, self-sacrificing chorus girls, and Episcopalian traffic cops, so the probability is there is such a thing as a good moving picture, says Fillmore Hyde in "The New Yorker." Hyde says he believes this to be true although he never has seen anything really masterly on the silver screen.

"The mere fact that those in power in the industry are careful to choose the most ignorant and grossly misinformed men that can be found to act in and to direct the important pictures is proof of the idealism which makes the motion picture what it is," he goes on to say.

Hyde continues with a brief analysis of the movie shows that are being offered these days,—"to show you what I mean by saying that although the present is occasionally dark the future is as rosy as can be." He calls attention to the fact that a number of theaters are bolstering a weak picture with vaudeville acts of high artistic qualities to satisfy the customers.

The future is, beyond question, highly promising. And the advice I should give those artists who now sit sublime, confident of their "fationary," says Hyde, "I would suggest, would be extremely cautious to Bernard Shaw that if he does not wish to be left behind, he had better exchange his celebrated vegetable diet for one of good red meat and write virile plays for change."

"The New Yorker" also tells two more stories in the saga of the magnates. The first tells of the producer who was discussing with his foreign agent the possibility of selling the Australian rights to a certain picture. "What's the idea of sending a picture to Australia? There's nothing but kangaroos out there," said a third man in the group. "What do I care about that?" replied the magnate. "Their money's as good as anyone else's."

And the second recounts the tale of two motion picture exhibitors from the Antipodes who landed in Los Angeles and began touring the studios. At one of them they were turned over to a producer who asked where the two men came from. "From Australia," he was told. The producer stopped short in admiration and exclaimed "What? You've been here only two days and speak the language already!"

IMAGINARY TELEPHONE CONVERSATION OF AD MEN

WALDO BEELER—"Hello, Hy, whom do you love?"
ISADORE HYMAN—"Don't shout, Beeler, I can hear you perfectly. Why, next to myself I like B. V. D. best. Just got a bunch of some kind of flowers from one of the advertisers."
BEELER—"I imagine they are spirea because four out of five have them. Smell the flowers and see if such popularity is deserved."
HYMAN—"Whew! What a whale of a difference a few scents makes. Say, do you know we are having quite a storm. Any danger talking over the phone?"
BEELER—"I don't think so. No metal can touch you. By the way, how did your garters look this morning?"
HYMAN—"They looked like they were on their last legs. Mum is the word. Got an ad today from a good store in a good town?"
BEELER—"Yes, Sir, Ad's My Baby. By the way did you see the parachute dropper the other evening?"
HYMAN—"Yes, he was good to the last drop. I hear he only gets one dollar for each drop he makes. United States liars are good liars."
BEELER—"Did you see the ball game Sunday? I hear some have complained about not getting their money's worth."
HYMAN—"Why, they got a run for their money. The local team got a run. On the surface everything was all right. And if you save the surface you save all."
BEELER—"What do you think of the lots of the Dodds Addition?"
HYMAN—"Ask the man who owns one. And watch Xenia grow. I've been out picking some blackberries. They're wild, but they satisfy."
BEELER—"Well, I'm going down and get me a new hat. It costs no more to buy a Kelley, so I'll get one."
HYMAN—"Well, it's time for me to retire. Guess I'll get a Fisk."

PAPER DISCUSSES POMERENE VICTORY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Commenting on the primary results in Ohio the Washington Post today said editorially:

"No doubt the Democrats of Ohio will work with heroic zeal to elect Mr. Pomerene for the sake of placing him in the most favorable position before the Democratic national convention in 1928. Democrats of other states will add them, because the election of Pomerene to the senate would be highly beneficial to the party at large and would give it increased prestige in the Presidential contest even if some candidate other than Mr. Pomerene should be nominated for president. With Mr. Pomerene in the senate, his advice and influence would be eagerly sought by all Democrats in national affairs."

The Gilded Rose

By May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out. Rosilyn loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbroke, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying him.

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner. She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a nightclub, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. These two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Landis continues philandering with Lydia while Rosilyn to help forget the pangs of jealousy, allows Briscoe to pay her more flattering attention. The next day the latter drives her to the station where she is to meet her husband before they leave for their country home.

Upon arrival at their destination Landis shamelessly confesses his admiration for Rosilyn and his own unworthiness, also suggesting that each might find it wiser to pursue a different course.

Soon after, Landis meets Lydia and while riding with her refuses to comment whether or not his wife "goes her own way," as he quite evidently does.

CHAPTER 45

AT THE TRACK
"I love you all the more for being loyal, Landis," Lydia edged nearer him, looking up into his handsome, moody face.

"Loyal?" He gave a short, harsh laugh. "I wouldn't call it that. I feel—a cad—often. Disloyal to Rosilyn. Unfair to you. And yet—it's hard—so hard—"

She snuggled closer, forgetting for the moment the glories of her brand new gown.

"Let's go on drifting, and never mind tomorrow. Introspection's fatal to happiness. And today we're going to be amazingly happy, you and I."

Her voice was low and full of sweetness.

The car sped on, and soon New York was left behind. They were out in the open country, which never had looked lovelier. Buttercups and daisies dotted the green fields, and as they neared their destination, masses of rhododendrons, red, white and purple, edged the road.

They parked the car and walked structure, with its hanging baskets of flowers.

It took Lydia quite fifteen minutes of her most persuasive efforts to coax her escort back to sunniness.

Later, they were at luncheon, and some wine Landis had brought with him made Lydia gayer than ever. "To our future!" she tilted up her glass.

Landis hesitated to respond. That chagrined her. "Won't you drink with me?" she cooed, very gently.

There was a moment's pause, and then he said, gruffly:

"It strikes me that some of you women are drinking a lot more than you used to do. Go easy, Lydia."

Her eyes flung a laughing challenge at him.

"Old sobbersides!" "It's true," persisted he. His glance roamed to a nearby table, where a party of young girls were quaffing highballs. "Debutantes!"

"Oh, don't be stuffy!" Lydia drained her glass, and then filled it again with Veuve Cliquot. "Have a't we both had lots of luck already. You won quite a good bit, Landis."

Money! Bitterly ashamed of the part that he had played, he felt a cad because of this resentment towards his mother, who no doubt had acted—as she thought—in her son's best interests.

They finished lunch. It was hot in the marquee, and he suggested getting outside for a breath of air. They went into the paddock.

Lydia was chattering gaily when she saw her escort's glance wander across the paddock towards a stout, grey-haired, middle-aged man in a grey hat and tightly buttoned grey frock coat, a white flower in his buttonhole and white spats on his feet.

But it was towards the man's companion that most eyes were turning. She was a slim, dark young woman, magnificently clad in a cream lace gown that fitted the lovely lines of her figure like the fish scales on a mermaid.

A yellow Spanish hat whose wide brim was completely covered with varied brilliant flowers was topped by a striking sunshade on which was painted a flaming bird of Paradise.

Lydia gazed. "Look, Landis! See that woman!"

"I'm looking at her escort. Don't you recognize him?" "Who? What?" The sun was in Lydia's eyes for a moment as she peered round at the porky figure a pace or two behind the charmer. Then her gaze widened. "Heavens! It's not Steve Van Vorst, is it? It can't be! He's in Paris!"

"It's none other," Landis was looking down at her with a little quizzical twist to his lips.

"Tomorrow—A Ruined Afternoon."

PITTSBURGH DRY CHIEF ORGANIZES AGENTS' SCHOOL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 13.—Prohibition agents in this section of the country are now attending classes before becoming full-fledged dry sleuths.

This was one of the innovations initiated by John D. Pennington when he assumed supervision of the Fourth United States District, which includes Central and Western Pennsylvania, with headquarters here.

Pennington, although he retired from the Navy with the rank of lieutenant commander, never attended the naval academy. But he thinks that schooling is a necessary element in the training of field men.

After being in charge of this district for a few weeks, Pennington decided that it sometimes is useless to raid a distillery unless a conviction is later forthcoming.

"Agents will be caught above all," he says, "to get the facts and then present them in court intelligently. Many of the good investigators make the poorest kind of witnesses when presenting their cases in court."

For this reason, W. H. McNaughter, head of the legal department of the prohibition unit, is one of the principal instructors in the school.

The big task of supervising issuance of permits to breweries and drug stores, calls for more intensive training in the legal direction.

Above all, Pennington will see to it that none of his subordinates gets the idea that prohibition enforcement work is synonymous with reforming, he announces.

"We want all our agents to be as courteous as possible in the performance of their duties."

"We want them to understand that their job is law enforcement. We are not reformers," Pennington said in discussing the school.

Pennington is the third administrator to hold office in this district since the "Andrews Plan" of enforcement went into effect last September.

His predecessors were Fred C. Baird, right-hand man to Judge Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation, who resigned after one month of tacked on the entire enforcement machinery.

NOT SO TIRED AT NIGHT

An Ode to a Headache!

When you're bean feels chucky and fuzzy and tite, when your temples throb and you can't see right, when a pain starts shootin' from ear to ear just stick on your hat and dash in here! Cause I've got some stuff that'll cure it ole dear! Good eh?

That "Song At Twilight"

It can be the EXACT one you WANT! When you "tune in" with an Orthophonic Victrola you get WHAT you want—not some fool line of talk on how to increase the size of oysters by teaching them calisthenics. Our records offer an enormously wide variety—prices from 49c to $2.00. Orthophonic Victrolas from $85.00 to $350.00.

Flies Are Out a Style!

They used to be looked upon as a necessary evil and large round oaths were hurled at them freely. Then came the sticky paper era and NOW comes Fly Tox which seems to US the most perfect system of fly annihilation we can imagine! Costs 50c for enuf to kill 9,999,392 adult flies.

Health is Not ALWAYS a Gift!

Health is like money—it can be earned, saved and accumulated. If it is a gift its one you can make to yourself. And nothing proves good health QUICKER than SPEED! You can HAVE speed if you use Rexall Hypophosphites Tonic reasonably regular. This we KNOW!

We've just discovered the BEST thing about these new fixtures in our store! Splendid for US here in the store and equally fine for YOU folks.

It's their CONVENIENCE!

We can wait on just about TWICE as many people with only about HALF the effort. In other words we can save YOUR time and OUR energy! Both highly desirable features certainly.

The OLD store was a bit too lengthy I see now and I regret that I didn't outfit myself and assistants with pedometers so's I could actually KNOW how many miles we had to walk in a day's time. It would a been a plenty.

The fixture people told us this would be the case but we never realized what it would mean until now we've fixed up.

I don't reckon this is particularly interesting to you all but t should be worth your attention to know that we can give you better SERVICE—QUICKER!

DOC SAYRE.

Ain't Doc the limit? Claims it's going to be easier to work here then right on top of this claims he can wait on TWICE as many people as he could before! There's SOME catch in this that I haven't got yet. Jake says there's a catch in it too but he hasn't doped it out yet. Awful nice LOOKIN store tho.

Much More Thorough Than a Cat!

It's a sporting proposition with a cat but with Rat Nip rat poison it's PLAIN RUIN! And once they've et some of it (the cats that is) they dig outta the house and die outside—which is as you want it?

For Blowing!

It's comforting to know that the handkerchiefs you get here never had a hand other than your OWN—on them! They're called Hank-O-Chief, sell from 10c to 2 for 25c, come in a variety of color combination and don't make Nobody mad.

Nine Ideas For Your Camera!

1. The old place before it was remodeled. 2. The old car you traded for a 1927 model. 3. That row of hollyhocks. 4. That old dress you made over. 5. The kids first lemonade stand. 6. His birthday cake. 7. Those tomato vines. 8. That bass. 9. The new golfing outfit. (We develop, finish and SELL films—also sell cameras.)

Police and Fountain News

No one ever heard of a soda water "bun" In spite of that fact that they're full of fun No one ever heard of a person getting tite When they put soda water on their diet.

So bounce in often to our soda water grill Order what you like and drink your fill There'll be no trouble from tummies or cops Very VERY different from a DRINK full of hops Which I could name if I cared to.

Helpless!

They can't TELL, you, they can't WRITE you about their troubles! All they can do is pucker up their round little faces and holler! And certainly they're important issues in THIS store! Our Baby department includes not only a full line of foods but rubber diapers, rubber nipples, bottles, toys, Talcum, soap, and ALL at right price.

THREE CHARGED WITH OLD MURDER

CORPORATION CUTS MELON

LARGEST DIVIDEND IN HISTORY CAUSES DECLINE ON FRIDAY

Speculators Make Millions Through Distribution

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—The market price for common stock of General Motors Corporation dropped off somewhat at opening of stock exchange today after announcement of the largest stock dividend in the history of Wall St.

The opening transaction was at $202.50, off $1 from yesterday's close. A wave of selling was started and soon the price had dropped to $201. Later a rally brought the quotation 202 7/8.

The opening decline had been expected since large stock distributions almost invariably are followed by an immediate drop in the market price.

Never before has such a luscious melon been cut for stockholders. Wall street had not long known of the impending stock dividend. On March 12, the stock of motors sold for 113.25 a share, less than four months later—last Monday, to be exact—the price had soared to $225.75, a gain of $112.50.

The automobile industry so far as it is represented by General Motors, has brought untold wealth to thousands of queuing speculators.

The estimated value of the General Motors stock distribution was $590,000,000.

LABORER TRADES BEER FOR WINNING LOTTERY TICKET

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—A day-laborer's thirst for a stein of good, cold beer, netted the widow of the local inn-keeper at Bad Ischl, Austria, a fortune of $15,000.

The buxom widow is the winner of the big prize in the latest Austrian state lottery. A few years ago, her husband worked near Ischl as a miner. Today his widow is one of the richest inhabitants of the district.

The winning ticket was first bought by a worker, Johann Bart, at a little tobacco shop at the summer resort of Bad Ischl. But Johann couldn't conjure up enough patience to await the fateful drawing of lots. And so when he visited the local inn one evening, he decided that a glass of beer in the hand was worth an uncertain lottery-prize in the bush. Accordingly, he ordered a stein of Pilsner and paid his bill with his lottery ticket.

When the lots were drawn, the inn-keeper's widow was officially advised that she had won $15,000. In order to console Johann for his loss, the widow invited him to drown his sorrow in beer for a whole evening—at her expense.

MAY ARREST FIVE CANTON MEN FOR MURDER OF DON R. MELLETT

Ohio State Penitentiary Prisoner Gives Valuable Information, is Report—Will Ask Indictments of Five Monday.

CANTON, O., Aug. 13.—Joseph B. Roach, special investigator indicated today that five Canton men may be arrested soon in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, publisher.

Roach and his aides refused to give any additional information or indicate the identity of the five suspects.

The development, it was understood, is a direct result of evidence of Roach obtained Tuesday in questioning prisoners at the Ohio State penitentiary.

The special grand jury will convene Monday to investigate the murder and vice conditions in Canton and they first will be asked to return indictments against the five men, it was intimated.

Federal operatives concerned themselves today with alleged blackmail and narcotic phases of the case. They investigated a report that one prominent citizen was paying blackmail to the underworld and tipping off the developments in the Mellett investigation.

Greene County's primary election was not an especially extravagant one and votes were not overly high.

Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections, believes upward of 6,500 voters went to the polls and estimated the cost of the election at about $3,200 for known expenses and miscellaneous items.

On this basis the cost of each vote would be approximately fifty cents.

SAYS TOBACCO IS WORSE THAN BOOZE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Tobacco is "worse than whiskey," Bishop W. A. Sellen, Jamestown, N. Y., of the Free Methodist Church, declared in an address at the 48th annual conference of the Free Methodist Church being held here.

"One who drinks knows he is a nuisance, but the man who smokes does not know enough to know he is a nuisance," the Bishop said.

Assignment of Ohio pastors for the coming year, began today by the conference.

WARNER EXPECTED TO SUCCEED SELF

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The newly elected Republican state central committee met here today to elect state chairman. Fred W. Warner of Marion was not a candidate and was not even present when elected state chairman two years ago, was actively seeking the place.

"I didn't want the job two years ago. This time I want it and I think I'll get it."

Opposition to Warner's re-election was expected to develop in the session.

TWELVE KILLED

BERLIN, Aug. 13.—The Regensburg-Munich Express was derailed today at Langenbach, near Munich and twelve persons were killed, according to an official statement regarding the wreck. Twenty-seven persons were said to have been injured.

WHITTEMORE HANGS IN BALTIMORE; LAST OF HIS GANG TO PAY

Says Calm "Good Bye" Before Trap Is Sprung

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 13.—Richard Reese Whittemore, bandit, was hanged today. With his death the last but one of the Whittemore gang, depredations of which netted them more than a million dollars, has paid the penalty of crime.

Death, disease and prison have claimed the others.

Whittemore, who was 28, went to the scaffold almost unmoved at the prospect of death.

"I wish to say good bye. That is the best I can wish for any one," was all he had to say as he stepped to the gallows in the presence of a roomful of disinterested witnesses.

A doctor and a guard accompanied Whittemore. He smiled faintly.

The black death hood was pulled over his disarranged hair. The noose was slipped tightly about his neck. He stood rigid saying his last good bye.

H. L. Mencken, magazine editor, who was among the spectators, turned to the man beside him. "There are mighty few witnesses here who could have spoken anything as calmly," he said.

There was a new stir on the illuminated stage.

Guards about the prisoner stepped back, leaving him standing on the steel trap. One walked to an adjoining room, where the lever to spring the trap is located.

The trap was sprung at 12:07 a. m.

Twelve minutes later Whittemore was pronounced dead.

Twenty four minutes after midnight Dr. Albert Anderson, penitentiary physician, permitted guards to cut down the body.

ALLEGED RUNNERS OF BOOZE CAPTURED

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 13.—Four men alleged to have been running liquor across the Ohio river by motorists from stills in Kentucky, were arrested by prohibition agents here.

The prisoners gave their names as:

W. W. and Walter Muderbach, farmers near Coney Island; John Silger and Fred Radcliff, Cincinnati.

Fifty-five gallons of moonshine were seized when the men attempted to transfer it from the launch to a waiting truck at a lonely spot east of Coney Island. Although heavily armed the men did not resist arrest.

THREE CANDIDATES FILE EXPENSES FOR PRIMARY CAMPAIGN

Candidates at the primary election in Greene County began filing their campaign expense accounts Friday.

County Recorder B. F. Thomas, renominated by the Republican party, spent $267.95, his statement showed.

Clerk of Courts Harvey Elam, unopposed for the Republican nomination, reported expenditures of $5.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, unopposed for Republican renomination, spent nothing and received no contributions. None of the three successful candidates who have filed reported contributions.

Blanks for expense accounts may be obtained from Earl Short, clerk of the board of elections.

The clerk also reminded all successful as well as defeated candidates, of the state law which requires a report of election expenses to be filed with the election board, or with the secretary of state, in case they were candidates on a state ticket, within ten days after the primary.

SEEK TO REMOVE MAYOR, POLICE HEAD

STUEBENVILLE, O., Aug. 13.—Petitions seeking the removal of Mayor John S. H. Patton and Police Chief Blaine Carter will be filed in court tomorrow, W. R. Albans, representing the Ministerial Association said today.

"Although we failed to get the desired 1,000 signatures to the petition we have the necessary 450," Albans said. "Time between now and Saturday will be spent checking the signatures, so that we will be sure they are legal before they are filed."

Chief Carter said he would ask that every signer to the petition be summoned to testify to the truth of the charges made.

ARRAIGN SLAYER

COSHOCOTON, Aug. 13.—Robert F. Thompson, who had been indicted by the grand jury on three counts, each charging first degree murder probably will be arraigned today. Thompson is charged with assaulting and strangling to death ten-year-old Gertrude D'Ostrop.

FLYER UNCONSCIOUS

AKRON, O., Aug. 13.—Alfred Jung, former "ace" in the German army injured in an airplane crash Sunday, was still unconscious today. He is suffering from a fractured skull.

New York Suffers When Electrical Storm Fails To Relieve Heat Wave

By United Press
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—New York today experienced another day of the humid, sweltering heat which has prevailed for nearly two weeks and was climaxed last night by one of the most violent electrical storms in years. Last night's storm came at the height of the evening rush hour and resulted in a subway tie up that held thousands in the steaming black hole underground for hours.

The confusion and discomfort was almost indescribable. When the violent storm broke, the people scamped for ways. Entrances were blocked, platforms jammed to suffocation and trains packed to the doors. In an hour 3.4 inches of rain fell. The subways were flooded, short circuits resulting. Despite the violence of the storm and the fact that lightning struck in several places in the city, police reported after a check up today that no lives had been lost in the Metropolitan area.

Two deaths were reported in New Jersey and one in Connecticut. Eleven pumps worked to clear the subway tunnels. Of the four tunnels under the river two were cleared soon after midnight but the remaining two were still impassable today.

For three hours the Pennsylvania trains were unable to operate west from the terminal. Eastbound trains were routed through Jersey City and passengers reached Manhattan via the Hudson tube and ferries.

So Annoyed!

Elsie Ferguson, actress, threatened to go to Alaska because, she said, the "American" public stares at her and invades her privacy with its curiosity.

FIVE RESCUED FROM MINE MUCH BETTER; RESCUE JUST IN TIME

Heavy Rain After Men Taken From Shaft Filled Mine With Water—Living Tomb Is Now Deserted

SALEM, Ky., Aug. 13.—The vicinity of the Zinc and Fluoropar mine, from which five men were rescued yesterday after having been entombed for a week, was deserted today save for a few workmen who were removing traces of a week's rescue efforts.

The five men rescued were all reported in excellent condition this morning. George Catillo, the only one really suffering when rescuers entered the shaft yesterday, was sufficiently recovered to chat with friends and relatives today.

When Catillo was taken from the mine he was extremely weak and had a hacking cough. Friends feared he had contracted pneumonia.

Physicians diagnosed Catillo's illness as a mere chill aided by weakness from lack of food. He refused hospital attention and was taken to his home.

Victims of the mining region here today said that the rescue of the five men was brought about just in time. Within a few hours after the rescue was made, a heavy rain started falling and continued for several hours. The water rapidly filled into the mine shaft and the miners said this would seriously have hampered all rescue attempts.

TOBACCO CAMPAIGN WILL BE LAUNCHED BY SALOON LEAGUE

Dry Workers Turn Prohibiting Mood On the "Weed."

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—A campaign similar to the temperance crusade which resulted in the eighteenth amendment will be launched shortly to stamp out the use of tobacco in any form officials of the Anti-Saloon League announced today.

The league particularly will seek legislation to bar women from smoking according to W. H. Mahoney, secretary.

"It will be a national calamity if the mothers of our children fall victims to the cigarette evil," Mahoney declared. "The race will retrograde and degenerate."

Plans for the drive against tobacco will be formulated at the second annual convention of the league at Winona Lake, Ind., August 25-27, Mahoney said.

The No-Tobacco League, a similar organization will hold its convention at Winona Lake at the same time, and it is probable, Mahoney said, that both leagues will unite in a single organization.

The Anti-Cigarette League, he said, will seek the aid of the National Parent-Teacher Association, which has gone on record against the habit.

GOVERNMENT PRICE PROBE OF GASOLINE UNDER WAY, REPORT

Result of Inquiry Is Being Kept Secret Temporarily

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—The government's investigation of the price of gasoline—chief grief of motorists—has been under way secretly for nearly two months.

The federal trade commission today in its monthly report of progress, divulged this information without disclosing how its inquiry was being carried forward.

The investigation is endeavoring to discover "whether advances in prices are due to restraints of trade or conditions of ownership or control preventing effective competition, and to the profits of the principal companies in this industry."

The investigation was directed by a resolution introduced by Senator Park Tamm, Democrat, Florida and adopted by the senate, June 3. Senator Tamm repeatedly denounced the oil companies from the senate floor because of the price jumps which, he said, became effective every spring just before the tourist season opens.

PREMIUM INCREASE

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Increased by more than $7,000 over 1925, premium awards hung over for the 1926 Ohio State Fair total $125,721.00. This sum is by far the largest ever assigned for the purpose of stimulating entries and interest at Ohio's great agricultural exposition.

OFFICIAL COUNT STARTED BY BROWN

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—Counting of the official vote in Tuesday's primary was started today by Secretary of State Thad Brown to definitely determine the outcome of two close contests.

First official certificates were received late yesterday and others were arriving today. Totals, however, are not expected to be in before next week.

Figures will be necessary to settle the several of the contests.

SEEK PROMOTER

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—A warrant charging conspiracy to violate the federal prohibition law in connection with the Lindale beer investigation was issued for William Fergus, flight promoter.

Lindale investigation began after Harry Parker, dry agent, took charge of a truck load of beer which mysteriously disappeared.

WIDOW OF MINISTER AMONG ACCUSED IN HALL-MILLS PROBE

Imprisoned Trooper Admits Being Paid To Disappear

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Aug. 13.—With three members of the Hall family held on charges of murder, the Hall-Mills case moved swiftly to a climax today.

Nearly four years after the Rev. Edward W. Hall and his choir singer sweetheart, Mrs. Eleanor Mills were found dead under a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm near New Brunswick, the state now charge the following with the murders:

Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman.

Willie Stevens, her eccentric brother.

Henry DeBruyere Carpenter, her cousin and neighbor.

Stevens and Carpenter were arrested last night at the Hall home, where Mrs. Hall is remaining under $15,000 bond.

They were in the Somerset County jail here today awaiting a hearing this afternoon in the county court house.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Investigation of the four-year-old slaying of Rev. Edward Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, near New Brunswick, N. J., shifted to the United States Disciplinary Barracks on Alcatraz island here today.

That a former maid in the home of Rev. Hall, whose purported story is to be the basis of a new grand jury investigation of the double murder, has not told many important details, was the declaration of Henry L. Dickman, New Jersey state trooper, now serving a term at Alcatraz for desertion from the army.

"That maid knows a whole lot more about it than she has told," Dickman declared to prison officials, who questioned him after his name was mentioned in press dispatches from New Jersey.

Dickman admitted freely that he accepted money to "disappear" while the investigation four years ago was in progress.

"Of course I took money to shut up and get out. If I hadn't why would I have left there with two months pay as a state trooper still owing me?" the prisoner is reported to have declared.

It already has been brought to light by New Brunswick authorities re-opening the Hall-Mills slaying probe that Dickman disappeared during the original inquiry with several months pay due him by the New Jersey constabulary.

Co-incidentally with Dickman's story, it was revealed that another prisoner whose name would not be divulged, also was in possession of facts concerning the maid's testimony.

Dickman, according to information received here had enlisted in the New Jersey state police under a false name and used fraudulent army credentials. He participated in the first investigation when Rev. Hall and Mrs. Mills were found murdered on a ranch near New Brunswick but disappeared shortly afterward.

DOG RACING SPLITS VILLAGE IN OHIO

NORTHFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Dog racing threatened to split this small county village into factions. A few weeks ago the village council passed an ordinance for the regulation of race tracks.

Chief provisions were a license by the mayor and the payment of twenty per cent of race track receipts into the village treasury. There were no race tracks in the village, but now it is understood that promoters of a plan to inaugurate whippet racing in Northfield were back of the measure. The ordinance was passed at a meeting of council early in July, opponents saw they had no opportunity to be heard and did not even know that such an ordinance was under consideration.

VILLAGE MENACED BY SERIOUS BLAZE

WEST MANSFIELD, O., Aug. 13.—Fire equipment from Bellefontaine and Kenton aided the local department today in fighting flames which for a time menaced the business section here.

The Odd Fellows building was destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $12,000. The cause of the fire has not been determined.

ORDER INSURANCE FOR TRANSIT FIRM

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 13.—The Ohio Transit Company has been ordered by the Ohio Public Utilities Commission to procure insurance covering possible damage to patrons or show why their license should not be revoked.

The company has run bus service since July 25 with no liability insurance, the order said. The complaint was filed by the Scioto Valley Railway and Power Co.

OIL STOVE EXPLODES

LIMA, O., Aug. 13.—When an oil stove exploded while Grace McCormick, 13, was preparing supper at her home near here, she was severely burned.

JETHRO'S WISE COUNSEL
GOLDEN TEXT: To each one his work. Mark, 13:14.

TIME: B. C. 1498, toward the close of the second month.

PLACE: REPHEM, in the Sinai region, between twenty and thirty miles from Mount Horeb.

INTRODUCTION: The great caravan of the Israelites had moved on through the wilderness toward their first objective, Sinai. The people complained again when there was a shortage of water. Joshua was victorious over the Amalekites when they clashed with the Israelites. Moses' family is now restored to him, since he did not bring them with him at first. Jethro the priest of Midian and Moses' father-in-law came to visit him and brought his wife and two children to him.

1. MOSES NOW A JUDGE: We can easily realize that the Israelites could not go on in an organized way, in their journeying, but must be highly organized so as to avoid confusion and delay, yet it was difficult to be practical in this organization because they had been in slavery so long and then they were continuously on the move. Civil government was arising. We often think that government is unnecessary and filled with a great deal of evil, as with human beings, but we must not measure the entire civil structure by that standard. With out law and officers to administer it, society would fall into confusion and anarchy if they were disposed of in any way. Government is an invisible atmosphere around us and a sky over us, and it is the breath of organized and orderly society and the vast roof over us that protects us from injustice and violence. We should not condemn our public officials as a class, since they are our own representatives and are as good as we are. "Moses sat to judge the people" and this fact throws a broad mantle of dignity over all his class.

2. HEAVY DUTIES OF OFFICE: Jethro saw the result that would follow the heavy duties that fell on the shoulders of Moses and said, "What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou alone, and all the people stand around thee from more to even?" "Thou art not able to perform it thyself alone," He then suggested that Moses call some of his associates to help him judge the people, in the small details at least. The strain of public office broke many a strong man down. We can see the furniture and physical effects of an office and business but we cannot observe the general weight of invisible responsibility and anxiety that overhangs all. The President and high officials are surrounded by heavy duties that we cannot imagine as a mountain is swept by gales that never reach the plain and that we never feel.

3. EXCELLENT ADVICE: All men need helpers because no man can go through life alone. The President needs his cabinet, a general his soldiers, the foreman his workmen, in our complicated structure of society and civilization we are woven together in an interlocking system where in each serves all and all serve each.

In our working together we must respect the rights, personality, wages and due reward due those over and under us. In this mutual relation of worker and helper we are all "members one of another" (Ephesians 4:25), and any spirit of pride and selfishness, of domineering dictation, of selfish exaltation etc., should be far from us, and we should work together in a spirit of comradeship and fellowship.

4. STRONG MEN OF FAITH: "Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able, such as fear God, men of truth, hating unjust gain." That Midian gave a standard of judgment and measuring judges than can be used today. One must have ability in order to administer the duties and responsibilities of high office. Yet ability is only one of the fundamental requirements because they must fear God, "such as fear God." All our great leaders have, with few exceptions, been men who feared God and if a man boldly declared that he had no belief in God, he had no path to high office among us would be practically and rightfully closed. They should be "men of truth." "I am the truth." Only truth is right and good and will last. These judges are to be men that hate unjust gain, spotless integrity must be their robe. The same purity should pervade all our political, business and social life. We should provide things honest in the sight of all men, and keep our hands clean of all taint and wrong.

5. PROSPERITY AND PEACE: "If thou shalt do this thing, and God command thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure and all this people shall go to their places in peace." The natural result of such government, conducted by able men, who fear God and love truth and hate unjust gain, is prosperity and peace. Good government is one of the greatest blessings of life and bad government is one of the greatest curses. Sin is social suicide and will cause the death of a nation. It is our duty to see that we select and elect able, God-fearing, truthful and just men for official stations, and that we be such people ourselves, and then we shall go to our place as a nation and have peace.

Then Pharaoh slept, and dreamed again. This time he stood in a corn field, and, before his eyes, seven kine, and seven well filled ears of corn sprang up, and while he watched them, seven ears, thin and blasted, and seven thin and starved kine, sprang up beside the seven good ones, and swallowed them up. And once more the king awoke and the dream passed. But these things troubled his spirit. He was sure that they meant something that he should know, but he called all his prudent counselors and his wizards, not one of them could tell him what the two dreams meant.

Now when the chief butler saw them all at a stand, the thought of Joseph and his prison dreams flashed across his mind. He came and bowed before the king and told him how two years before, when he and his comrade, the chief baker, lay in prison, a young Hebrew prisoner had interpreted their dreams to them and how to each man it had happened according to this Hebrew's reading of the future.

Then the king and his guards, by order, caused Joseph to be brought to the palace quickly, after he had been shaved and dressed in seemingly garments (for the Egyptians were scrupulous above all other people about cleanliness), he came and bowed himself before the royal throne. Then said the Pharaoh, "I have dreamed a dream, and none can tell me its meaning, and it is told me that you are wise and can interpret dreams."

And Joseph answered humbly, "It is not in me that the wisdom lies; God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace."

So the king repeated to Joseph the dreams of the cattle and the ears of corn; and when Joseph had heard them, he answered in this fashion: "His majesty's dreams both mean the same thing. God has shown His Majesty beforehand

what He intends to do. The seven fat cattle and the seven full ears of corn means that God is going to give to this land seven full and plentiful years of harvests. And the seven lean cattle and seven blasted ears means that after the seven years of plenty there shall come seven years famine. So great shall be the dearth that all the stores laid up during the seven years of plenty shall be eaten up, and no one shall remember the seven years of plenty because of the great famine. As for the reason the dream came in two parts, is because God wished His Majesty to know for sure that all this shall surely come and that speedily. Now, therefore, let his Majesty choose out a wise man to order the affairs of the land and let him have officers under him who shall collect each year in the time of plenty, one fifth of the harvest and lay it up in store, so that when the years of famine come there shall still be corn to eat, and the land shall not perish."

How Long Since You Heard This?
God's promise of Life Hereafter
Matthew 28

Now late on the Sabbath day, as it began dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre. And behold, there was a great earthquake; for an angel of the Lord descended from Heaven, and came and rolled away the stone, and sat upon it. His appearance was as lightning and his raiment white as snow; and for fear of him the watchers did quake, and became as dead men. And the angel answered and said unto the women "Fear not ye; for I know that ye seek Jesus, who hath been crucified. He is not here; for He is risen, even as He said. Come and see the place where the Lord lay and go quickly and tell His disciples that He is risen from the dead; and lo, He goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see Him: I have told you." And they departed from the tomb with fear and great joy, and ran to bring his disciples word. And behold Jesus met them saying "All hail." And they came and took hold of His feet, and worshipped Him. Then said Jesus to them, "Fear not, go tell my brethren that they depart into Galilee, and there they shall see me." Now while they were going, behold some of the guards came into the city and told unto the chief priests all the things that were come to pass, and when they were assembled with the elders, and had taken counsel, they gave much money unto the soldiers saying, "Say ye His disciples came by night and stole Him away while we slept. And if this come to the Governor's ears we will persuade him, and rid you of care." So they took the money and did as they were taught and this saying was spread among the Jews and the Christians to this day. But the eleven disciples went into Galilee, unto the mountains where Jesus had appointed them and when they saw him they worshipped him; but some doubted and Jesus came to them and spoke to them, saying "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world."

OFFICIAL COUNT SENT TO COLUMBUS

Official tabulation of returns from the forty-seven precincts in Greene County for the primary election, was completed at the board of elections' office at the Court House late Thursday afternoon and the vote forwarded to Columbus by Earl Short, clerk of the board.

The official count failed to bring about any change in the unofficially announced results for county, party and state offices, although the vote received by several candidates was slightly greater or less in some instances.
Not in years were returns as slow in coming in as at the Tuesday primary and the compilation of the vote was equally a slow process. This is attributed to the heavy Republican and Democratic slates.

WASN'T WHALE

INDIAN CASTLE WAS SHACK AMERICAN GIRL HAS REVEALED

(This is the third of a series of five articles written by Betty Kurlow, Chicago co-ed who married at Hindu and went with him to India where she experienced many hardships. In her first two articles, Miss Kurlow told how Abani Kumar Bose wooed her at the Northeastern University, Chicago took her to India and then sent her to his "Castle" in Barodi, East Bengal, because she had displeased a Brahmin priest.)

Written For The United Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—The Castle I had heard about in America turned out to be nothing but a big, old shack when I saw it in India. It was located in an almost unbelievable dreary expanse of rice fields. The house was large, dirty and entirely devoid of any convenience. Its dark corners were used for nests by large droves of bats; mosquitoes came in swarms through the iron barred windows; poisonous snakes coiled about the damp foundations; vultures flew in circles about the yard, waiting for refuse to be thrown from the kitchen, and—worst of all to me—tigers and jackals roared and whined outside the windows the whole night through.

Such was my husband's feudal castle, the seat of government of the Indian province of Barodi. No white persons were within hundreds of miles. I had no one I could talk to; no books to read—nothing. The natives stared. It was awful.
I was put into the Zenana—the Harem—where I was forced to spend three months while my husband tried to get another priest to hold services for the Boses. Ana Abani, instead of writing to me, as he should have done, wrote to his brother—my jailer, telling

Mexican Refugees Find Haven

Charging that the Mexican Government's campaign against their Church is caused by fear that the Church is educating the masses, Father Fabian, Father Florence and Brother Benedict (left to right), exiles, found a haven at a monastery at Union City, N. J.

him to be sure to hold me until a new priest was obtained at Calcutta.

During my stay in Barodi I was taken ill from the dirty food and the vile living conditions. I wrote to my mother, finally begging her to send me money so that I could come back home. I thought I would die—I even contemplated committing suicide. Finally, however, my husband obtained a priest who would overlook my being one of "the devil's own" and I was allowed to return to Calcutta.

My illness became worse and I contracted the dread Dengue fever—a native disease carried by the giant mosquitoes of the rice swamps. After hovering between life and death for weeks, in pestilent Calcutta, I began to recover. But my nerves were shattered and I looked "wrecked." My skin had turned yellow, my eyes were sunken, my hair straggly and I remained for some time so weak I could hardly walk.

My husband by this time was not the same man. He was exactly like any other well-born Hindu in the city. His wife was merely a plaything, something to be fondled when he was in a good humor and something to be ignored whenever it suited him.

But Abani was inordinately proud of having married a white woman. He took every chance he could to show his fellow countrymen how he could dominate me—how he could rule his American wife. I was made to wear native clothes, to live entirely with Indians and not even permitted to speak with the few white people in the city.

Even had my husband allowed me to mingle in the English colony I could not have done it because the other white people looked at me in scorn for marrying a Hindu. And being snubbed by the only people in the city, I could talk to, outside of my husband, hurt me worse perhaps than did anything else.

In her fourth article tomorrow, Miss Kurlow tells how an effort was made to sell her to a Hindu prince.

ALL NATIONS TAKE PART IN CARNIVAL

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 13.—More than fifty nationalities will take part in the coming Armistice Day celebration here which is being bulletined as one of the biggest events held in Cleveland in years. All foreign language newspapers here are giving the event generous space and representatives of foreign born Clevelanders have announced their approval of the plan.

DON'T ANNOY FIREMEN

URBANA, O., Aug. 13.—When his automobile caught fire, William Yates didn't bother to call the fire department. Yates drove his automobile over to the department. The fire caused little damage.

ANTI-KLAN DEMOCRATS CLAIM CENTRAL COMMITTEE CONTROL

Primary results indicate the downfall of the Ku Klux Klan from the place of political power it has held in the Democratic party in Greene County for the past two years.

The anti-Klan organization claims to have elected from thirteen to fifteen candidates for the Democratic Greene County Central Committee at the primary, which would give the Democrats not in sympathy with the Klan the balance of power after a lapse of two years.

There can be but twenty-four members of the committee. Date for re-organization of the committee, election of an executive committee and selection of a chairman has not been set. The official call for the meeting must be made by a majority of members.

Winning candidates for the committee follow:

Townships: Xenia—Raymond Wolf; Miami—Fred Dawson; Jefferson—W. L. Cline; Cedarville—Lawrence Barber; Cassacreek—Emory Oglesbee; Sugar Creek—William Jobe; Spring Valley—Harper Linkhart; Silvercreek—J. M. er; Ross—M. R. Ritenour; New Jasper—O. C. Shirk; Bath—Fred Shellabarger; Beaver Creek—J. Jones.

Xenia City: First Ward—Harry Donovan; Second Ward—C. R. Bales; Third Ward—H. A. Higgins; Fourth Ward—Walter Cline. Villages: Yellow Springs—John Alexander; Spring Valley—C. H. Dill; Osborn—Henry Fisher; Jamestown—Bess Robinson; Fairfield—O. A. Wilson; Cedarville—J. E. Mitchell; Bowersville—W. W. Warnock; Bellbrook—O. M. Hook.

MANAGER ORDERED TO REMOVE RAILS OF OLD CAR LINE

SATURDAY

City Manager S. O. Hale was instructed by City Commission Thursday night to proceed almost immediately with the dismantling of the route formerly covered by the city street car and repair of S. Detroit St.

The rails are to be torn out and the street repaved with brick and placed back in its original condition with $10,000 given the city by The Dayton, Springfield and Xenia Southern Railway Co.

The work will be under actual supervision of the Foster Engineering Co., of Dayton but the equipment is rented by the city.

Repair work is expected to start not later than September 1. Only other business transacted by commission at its meeting was to pass a small street assessment ordinance on its second reading as a result of the extension of the city water mains on Home Ave. and Walnut St.

A SIGN OF PROSPERITY

If, as has been said, prosperity is largely indicated by the extent of travel in a nation, the outlook for the nation this year is most encouraging; as much so as is the report for last.

The railroads, it would seem, are getting back to something near to normal in operating conditions. Their business has done so well in the past year that voluntary reductions in passenger rates this year will exceed $55,000,000, according to the report of the committee on public relations of the eastern carriers. The vast sum quoted represents excursion rates and trip or commuters tickets in the larger of the eastern cities. It seems that there are more such tickets sold now than has been the case in the past eight years, with every indication that the number will increase, instead of decrease.

In addition to this the motor car trade of the country is looking forward to the greatest in its history, a prosperity which seems to be borne out by reports for the first six months which reveal great advances.

So it is that the country must be prosperous, for when a public travels it indicates that business is moving, that the people have money to spend and are spending it, and that all branches of labor and trade are being benefited thereby.

East Side - West Side

—OF—

New York

By Jack O'Donnell

You don't know Dr. John Wilds. You don't know him because his name hasn't been headlined in the newspapers. But this doesn't mean that he isn't an important man. Dig through the files of old newspapers and discover for yourself how transient is the fame of legends who have flashed for a moment in the headlines and then dropped back into the shadows of the obscurity from which sensation dragged them for a giddy moment or two.

Dr. Wilds is really one of the most important, in the best sense of that word, men in America. He is a minister. For over thirty years he has been the pastor of a tiny church on Broome Street, Broome Street is in the heart of the turbulent East Side, that colorful, noisy, smelly, swirling quarter of New York where the immigrants whose children are to be "100 per cent Americans," if the steering is right, begin their life under the Stars and Stripes.

For over thirty years, Dr. Wilds has been making fine Americans out of material that didn't look any too helpful when he first touched it with the magic of his fine spirit, his serene philosophy. At the risk of appearing to be overly sentimental and a bit banal, I want to say that Dr. Wilds is the most Christlike man I have ever known.

Twenty years ago Dr. Wilds received two strange visitors in the study of the little home he occupies on Broome Street. The visitors were gunmen, and the trade they were known as "cock" gunmen. They explained to Dr. Wilds that they wanted favors from him. He asked them to be explicit.

"It's this way," one of the gunmen explained. "We hear that all the regular outfits like the Macons, the Odd Fellows, the A.O.H. and all them layouts has chaplains. Well, we got one of the best gangs of gunmen in New York City and we want a chaplain. Do you want the job?"

Dr. Wilds took the job. For six years he was chaplain to that gang. He knew when "jobs" were going to be pulled off. He knew the men involved in famous burglaries and "stick up" cases. But he never squealed, never committed the cardinal crime of the underworld. Also he never preached to these gunmen for he is one of those paradoxical preachers who doesn't believe much in preaching.

But gradually these gunmen began to ask questions. They wanted to know how this guy Christ figured things. Dr. Wilds told them what he thought about that guy and his "low down" on how a life should be lived. Today twenty-eight members of that famous old gang are honest, respectable business men in New York. Two are dead. One is in Sing Sing. What about it? Does Dr. Wilds qualify as an important person?

Two ruined truck drivers were recently engaged in an alleged wrestling match at one of the sporting clubs with which the city is dotted. They embraced each other fondly, whispered sweet nothings about the weather and the probable size of the house, wondered how long they could get away with such "murder" and stalled and stalled and stalled. The crowd wanted action. They didn't get it. Suddenly a truck driver who was still working honestly at his natural trade yelled down from the gallery.

"Turn out the lights," he roared. "They want to be alone."

R. P. A., columnist of The New York World, insists that they should now be known as "bobber shops." Be that as it isn't, the fact remains that a flapper who couldn't have been a day over forty-nine entered a barber shop. She explained that she craved a bob. She then annoyed the barber with instructions, criticism and small chat about the weather.

She remained in the chair for about an hour and a half while some mere men who wanted a five minute shave fumed on the sidelines. Meanwhile the paint of her features dried until she looked like an old doll dug out of some Egyptian tomb. Finally she rose from the chair, but after another look in the mirror, decided that the bob was still a clipped hair or two shy of being perfect.

"I don't like it," she pouted. "I look funny."

"Don't blame me, Madam," the barber replied wearily. "You looked funny when you came into the shop."

Today's Talk

ROAMERS OF THE FOREST

As human beings we do not understand each other very well. And yet it is a very simple process when community of interest is established.

I often think of this in connection with our understanding of animals. Animals like human beings when they understand that they mean no harm to them. The dog and cat have long become companions of man.

The other day I stood in a great park and watched four little girls read some ground hogs from their hands. The beautiful animals ran up and took their gifts in great glee. They had learned from long association with people who came into the park and fed them that these were friends of theirs.

How beautiful the deer is! I saw one leap through the woods the other day and the sight gave me a great thrill. I thought how very wrong for an intelligent man to kill one of these beautiful animals. I hope the time will come when there will be no killing of the animals that roam the forests of the country. They give something to the wild—a personality.

Today I watched a ground squirrel gather dry grass for his nest.

REQUESTED PICKLE RECIPES

"I never put up pickles, because my family does not like them," explained one of my friends. "But—how about your guests?" I was tempted to ask. For often a pickle or relish turns a "flat" meal into an attractive one to the stranger within our gates. The following varieties are popular; (the first two having been requested by readers):

Mustard Pickles: Use equal measures of cucumbers, green tomatoes, cauliflower and small onions. Cover the mixture with boiling brine made in the proportion of one cup of salt for every quart of water. Let stand twenty-four hours, then drain. Now cover with fresh boiling water and let stand one-half hour. Drain again and add to the following Mustard Sauce: Mix together one cup of brown sugar, one-fourth pound of dry mustard powder, and one-fourth pound of bread flour; wet the mixture with one quart of vinegar. Heat and stir till thick, add vegetables to it, then turn all into hot sterilized jars. Seal air-tight at once and store.

Sweet Peach Pickle: Dip sixteen peaches quickly into hot water and then rub with a towel to remove skins. Pierce each peach with a whole clove and drop them gently into this sirup; Boil together one cup of vinegar, one pound of brown sugar and one-half ounce of stick cinnamon for five minutes. Into this sirup drop the peaches and cook slowly till soft. Can in sterilized glass jars, with the sirup poured over the cooked peaches.

Sweet Pear Pickle: Use above directions for Sweet Peach Pickle, except that pears are substituted for the peaches.

Indian Sauce: Wipe six apples and six large ripe tomatoes. Cut both in medium-sized pieces and mix them with one-half pound of large seedless raisins, one-fourth cup of salt, one large red sweet pepper put through food grinder, three large peeled onions also chopped, and two quarts of cider vinegar. Boil all together for one hour and force through a wide-meshed sieve then add one tablespoon of mustard powder and one tablespoon of ground ginger and boil till as thick as catsup be-

SIDELIGHTS

ON
Greene County History

ROSS TOWNSHIP

Ross Twp. is probably the most level township in the county and has less waste land in proportion to its total area than any other township in the county.

It is essentially an agricultural community. There has never been a village in the township, nor has there ever been a townsite platted within its limits.

It has had a number of railroads proposed which would cross the township, but so far none have ever materialized, although one company got so far along the building of a road that its right-of-way was graded across the township.

The soil is a sandy loam with enough humus to make it very productive, while the farmers of today have made the soil even more productive than it was a few years ago.

Grape Grove and Gladstone are two embryonic villages of the township but neither has ever been platted. For nearly a century there has usually been a store at one of the other of two places, and for several years there was a postoffice at Grape Grove but since the establishment of free delivery service it has been discontinued.

THE OPTIMISTIC DUB

How merrily the robins sing!
How beautiful the sky!
Shall I regret so small a thing
That in the rough I lie?

The trees are in their summer dress!

The air like golden wine!
Then shall I sob as I confess
I'm putting for a nine?

There's more to golf than medal score!

It's good to be alive
On such a day! Am I a four?
No, bless you, I'm a five.

Just hear the Bob Whites round about!

How happily they call!
Oh, I won't bother hoing out,
I think I've lost my ball.

How gloriously shines the sun
Upon the maple trees!
Now what can I that I have done
A pair of fifty-threes?
Nature sustains all golfing clubs

Beyond the slightest doubt,
For she it is who gives the dubs
Something to rave about.

The Theatre

There is some reason to believe that there are such things as kind-hearted cannibals, contemplative stockbrokers, sincere Congressmen, slender opera singers, stylish American generals, Nordic theatrical producers, well-educated debutantes, self-sacrificing chorus girls, and Episcopalian traffic cops, so the probability is there is such a thing as a good moving picture, says Fillmore Hyde in "The New Yorker." Hyde says he believes this to be true although he never has seen anything really masterly on the silver screen.

"The mere fact that those in power in the industry are careful to choose the most ignorant and grossly misinformed men that can be found to act in and to direct the important pictures is proof of the idealism which makes the motion picture what it is," he goes on to say.

Hyde continues with a brief analysis of the movie shows that are being offered these days,—"to show you what I mean by saying that although the present is occasionally dark the future is as rosy as can be." He calls attention to the fact that a number of theaters are bolstering a weak picture with vaudeville acts of high artistic qualities to satisfy the customers.

The future is, beyond question, highly promising. And the advice I should give those artists who now sit sublime, confident of their tonary," says Hyde. "I would suggest, would be extremely caustic to Bernard Shaw that if he does not wish to be left behind, he had better exchange his celebrated vegetable diet for one of good red meat and write virile plays for change."

"The New Yorker" also tells two more stories in the saga of the magnates. The first tells of the producer who was discussing with his foreign agent the possibility of selling the Australian rights to a certain picture. "What's the idea of sending a picture to Australia? There's nothing but kangaroos out there," said a third man in the group. "What do I care about that?" replied the magnate. "Their money's as good as anyone else's."

And the second recounts the tale of two motion picture exhibitors from the Antipodes who landed in Los Angeles and began touring the studios. At one of them they were turned over to a producer who asked where the two men came from. "From Australia" he was told. The producer stopped short in admiration and exclaimed "What? You've been here only two days and speak the language already!"

KIWANIS TAKES SECOND GAME FROM ROTARY AT JOINT PICNIC

Members of the Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs enjoyed their first annual picnic-meeting Thursday evening. A threatened downpour of rain held off and Rotarians and Kiwanians feasted together on a lawn near the Masonic Temple in the Dodds Addition. Informal speeches featured the picnic dinner.

Preceding the dinner, the Kiwanis Club went rampant on an enlarged batting spree and defeated the Rotarians in a soft ball game 14 to 9 at Cook Memorial Athletic Field. The victory was the second straight and gave Kiwanis the deciding game of the series.

The Kiwanis Committee for Bigger and Better Scores had certainly made some progress and at the conclusion of the regulation nine inning game when the shades of darkness were about to steal across the field, the Rotary men had to be dug out from beneath fourteen runs amassed against it.

In consequence Rotary loses the championship for this year at least between the two clubs. Rotary also made good progress in the run making line but Kiwanis piled up such an early lead, the losers could gain the run advantage at no stage of the contest.

J. F. McLaughlin and Fairies formed the Kiwanis battery with Bice and Tull dividing the pitching end and Ervin behind the plate for Rotary as in the preceding contest.

The Kiwanis hurler pitched shutout ball the first three innings and was found infrequently for runs in the remaining six frames. Both Bice and Tull were ineffective, the winners producing run-getting rallies in seven of the nine stanzas.

Every man on the Kiwanis team obtained one or more hits, Fairies leading at bat with five singles. Baldner was again the hitting and fielding star for Rotary.

The score:
Kiwanis 14, Rotary 9.

XENIA PACER OUT OF MONEY AT FAIR

Silver Pointer, by Sidney Pointer, pacer owned by James W. Faulkner, Xenia, did not fare so well in the 2:10 pace, an event on the second day of the program of the Hamilton County Fair at the Carthage Fairgrounds Thursday.

The local horse finished fourth in the first heat. Rain drenched the racing strip and as a result only the first heat of the three races could be run. The program was carried over to Friday.

FINED WHEN PLEA CHANGED TO GUILTY

Withdrawing his previous not guilty plea and substituting one of guilty, J. W. Keeler, Dayton, was given the minimum fine, $100 and costs, for illegal possession of liquor by Judge S. C. Wright in Probate Court Friday morning.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Wright heard statements of Prosecutor J. Carl Marshall and defendant counsel, Attorney E. D. Smith.

Keeler was arrested August 5 by state prohibition officers at a camp along a river near Bellbrook. Testimony produced before the court showed the Dayton man was Third annual caddy's golf tournament got under way at the Xenia Country Club Thursday under the direction of Donald Currie, club professional, when the qualifying rounds of eighteen holes were begun by twenty-six entrants.

The tourney is to be divided off into three flights of eight entries each. Survivors in these flights after the qualifying round will be paired off in match play until by a gradual process of elimination, winners in each division are determined.

Classification of the caddies in the various flights depend upon the scores made in the preliminary round.

Winner of the first flight will be recognized as the champion caddy golfer at the club for 1926.

Prizes are being offered flight winners by members of the club, which is creating an unusual interest in the tournament.

IMAGINARY CONVERSATION OF AD MEN

WALDO BEELER—"Hello, Hy, whom do you love?"

ISADORE HYMAN—"Don't shout, Beeler, I can hear you perfectly. Why, next to myself I like B. V. D. best. Just got a bunch of some kind of flowers from one of the advertisers."

BEELER—"I imagine they are spirea because four out of five have them. Smell the flowers and see if such popularity is deserved."

HYMAN—"Whew! What a whale of a difference a few scents makes. Say, do you know we are having quite a storm. Any danger talking over the phone?"

BEELER—"I don't think so. No metal can touch you. By the way, how did your garters look this morning?"

HYMAN—"They looked like they were on their last legs. Mum is the word. Got an ad today from a good store in a good town?"

BEELER—"Yes, Sir, Ad's My Baby. By the way did you see the parachute dropper the other evening?"

HYMAN—"Yes, he was good to the last drop. I hear he only gets one dollar for each drop he makes. United States Hars are good Hars."

BEELER—"Did you see the ball game Sunday? I hear some have complained about not getting their money's worth."

HYMAN—"Why, they got a run for their money. The local team got a run. On the surface everything was all right. And if you save the surface you save all."

BEELER—"What do you think of the lots of the Dodds Addition?"

HYMAN—"Ask the man who owns one. And watch Xenia grow. I've been out picking some blackberries. They're wild, but they satisfy."

BEELER—"Well, I'm going down and get me a new hat. It costs no more to buy a Kelley, so I'll get one."

HYMAN—"Well, it's time for me to retire. Guess I'll get a Fisk."

SAVES HERSELF IN FALL INTO WELL

ROSWELL, O., Aug. 13.—Mrs. Rubin Treastine, 36, narrowly escaped death when she fell into a well containing twenty feet of water at her home here. She clung to a pipe alongside of the well for nearly a half hour maintaining her head above water, before she was rescued.

Mrs. Treastine fell into the well when rotting boards gave away. Her daughter heard her shouts for aid and called neighbors.

PAPER DISCUSSES POMERENE VICTORY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13.—Commenting on the primary results in Ohio the Washington Post today said editorially:

"No doubt the Democrats of Ohio will work with heroic zeal to elect Mr. Pomerene for the sake of placing him in the most favorable position before the Democratic national convention in 1928.

Democrats of other states will aid them, because the election of Pomerene to the senate would be highly beneficial to the party at large and would give it increased prestige in the Presidential contest even if some candidate other than Mr. Pomerene should be nominated for president. With Mr. Pomerene in the senate, his advice and influence would be eagerly sought by all Democrats in national affairs."

Questioned

The Gilded Rose

By May Christie

WHO'S WHO IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN RIDGEWAY learns on her wedding day from idle gossip that she has been married for her money. Before her enormous fortune was left her, she had been an over-worked little drudge in her father's inn.

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, her husband is a brilliant, fascinating man, who was forced into the marriage by his mother.

FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, an aristocratic old lady, who saw poverty staring her in the face, and chose the easiest way out.

ROSILYN loving her husband, knows that he is still in love with Lydia Harbottle, a beautiful, cold society girl who is bent on marrying.

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is really fond of Ridgeway. She is in Paris when the news reaches her of Landis' marriage and she hastens back to the United States. With her goes Rupert Briscoe, a dissipated man of the world, who has seen Rosilyn but once, and yet is deeply interested in her. Lydia learns of this interest, and when the two reach New York, she suggests that they ask the young Ridgeways to dinner.

She and Briscoe concoct a plot whereby through an apparent misunderstanding Rosilyn and Briscoe will be left alone together, while she will be with her beloved Landis.

Landis, finding himself alone with Lydia falls under her spell once more. Some hours later that evening, Rosilyn who is bewildered to find herself spending the evening in the company of Rupert Briscoe, sees her husband dancing with Lydia—in his eyes a look of rapture. She believes he has seen her but is too rude—or ashamed—to speak. Briscoe asks her to go on to a nightclub, and in a mood of recklessness she consents.

In Paris Van Vorst, realizing the reason for Lydia's sudden trip to America and hungering for her love, decides to use Marietta, a dancer and sweetheart of Briscoe's in connection with a plan. These two arrange to come to New York where Marietta is to vamp Landis away from Lydia, leaving a clear field for the elderly schemer.

Landis continues philandering with Lydia while Rosilyn tries to help forget the pangs of jealousy, allows Briscoe to pay her more flattering attention. The next day the latter drives her to the station where she is to meet her husband before they leave for their country home.

Upon arrival at their destination Landis shamefacedly confesses his admiration for Rosilyn and his own unworthiness, suggesting that each might find it wiser to pursue a different course.

Soon after, Landis meets Lydia and while riding with her refuses to comment whether or not his wife "goes her own way," as he quite evidently does.

CHAPTER 45

AT THE TRACK

"I love you all the more for being loyal, Landis," Lydia edged nearer him, looking up into his handsome, moody face.

"Loyal?" He gave a short, harsh laugh. "I wouldn't call it that. I feel—a cad—often. Disloyal to Rosilyn. Unfair to you. And yet—it's hard—so hard—"

She snuggled closer, forgetting for the moment the glories of her brand new gown.

"Let's go on drifting, and never mind tomorrow. Introspection's fatal to happiness. And today we're going to be amazingly happy, you and I."

Her voice was low and full of sweetness.

The car sped on, and soon New York was left behind. They were out in the open country, which never had looked lovelier. Buttercups and daisies dotted the green fields, and as they neared their destination, masses of rhododendrons, red, white and purple, edged the road.

They parked the car and walked toward the stands. Under a sky of delicate blue flecked with snowy little cloudlets the course and lawns of the rendezvous were a veritable dream of beauty. Women's exquisite toilettes in ever tint imaginable formed a kaleidoscope of colour, changing as they moved hither and thither on the green sward.

Smart men, flowers in the buttonholes, were escorts to these lovely women.

"Isn't it heavenly?" breathed Lydia, as she and Landis strolled across the lawns. This was her metier—the life she loved.

A cloud came upon Landis' former mood of gaiety. The gorgeous toilettes all about him brought—in sharp contrast to his memory the picture of a small, pale girl with wistful eyes who had lavished money generously upon him—the girl whom he had left at home all heedless of her happiness.

She had been very simply dressed, that girl, and yet never had she looked so appealing as when she had bade goodbye to him, and told him—with that wistful, little smile of hers that held such a mystery—how much she hoped he would enjoy himself, and that he wasn't to hurry back on her account.

"You wouldn't care to go to the Races?" he had said, tentatively, and at the same time wondering what on earth he should do if she accepted.

"No, thank you," she had answered, the little smile in evidence, but the mystery deepening in her really lovely eyes, "I shouldn't do you credit, Landis. All the beauties will be there and all the Paris gowns. I'd be awfully out of place, I can assure you."

"You'd be like a sweet little moss rose among the tiger lilies and the orchids!"

She had laughed and flushed at that!

"The tiger-lilies and the orchids are more suitable, in any case. So please excuse me, and enjoy yourself!"

Lydia chattered at his side. Every now and then, friends and acquaintances stopped them for a word or two. Gay badinage was all about them.

"And where's the bride?" he was asked several times.

"Down at our country place. One or other of us has to be always there just now, until the decorations are complete."

"Let's go over to the stand! I'm sick of these bores!" commanded Landis, steering Lydia away.

They found their seats in the big chocolate and cream decorated structure, with its hanging baskets of flowers.

It took Lydia quite fifteen minutes of her most persuasive efforts to coax her escort back to sunlight.

"To our future!" she tilted up her glass.

Landis hesitated to respond. That chagrined her.

"Won't you drink with me?" she cooed, very gently.

There was a moment's pause, and then he said, gruffly:

"It strikes me that some of you women are drinking a lot more than you used to do. Go easy, Lydia."

Her eyes flung a laughing challenge at him.

"Old sobersides!"

"It's true," persisted he. His glance roamed to a nearby table, where a party of young girls were quaffing highballs. "Debutantes!"

"Oh, don't be stuffy!" Lydia drained her glass, and then filled it again with Veuve Cluquet. "Have n't we both had lots of luck already. You won quite a good bit, Landis."

Money! Bitterly ashamed of the part that he had played, he felt a cad because of this resentment towards his mother, who no doubt had acted—as she thought—in her son's best interests.

They finished lunch. It was hot in the marquee, and he suggested getting outside for a breath of air.

They went into the paddock. Lydia was chattering gaily when she saw her escort's glance wander across the paddock towards a stoutish-built middle-aged man in a grey hat and tightly buttoned grey frock coat, a white flower in his buttonhole and white spats on his feet.

But it was towards the man's companion that most eyes were turning. She was a slim, dark young woman, magnificently clad in a cream lace gown that fitted the lovely lines of her figure like the fish scales on a mermaid. A yellow Spanish hat whose wide brim was completely covered with varied brilliant flowers was topped by a striking sunshade on which was painted a flaming bird of Paradise.

Lydia gazed.

"Look, Landis! See that woman!"

"I'm looking at her escort. Don't you recognize him?"

"Who? What?" The sun was in Lydia's eyes for a moment as she peered round at the porky figure a pace or two behind the charmer. Then her gaze widened. "Heavens! It's not Steve Van Vorst, is it? It can't be! He's in Paris!"

"It's none other," Landis was looking down at her with a little quizzical twist to his lips.

Tomorrow—A Ruined Afternoon.

PITTSBURGH DRY CHIEF ORGANIZES AGENTS' SCHOOL

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 13.—Prohibition agents in this section of the country are now attending classes before becoming full-fledged dry agents.

This was one of the innovations initiated by John D. Pennington when he assumed supervision of the Fourth United States District, which includes Central and Western Pennsylvania, with headquarters here.

Pennington, although he retired from the Navy with the rank of lieutenant commander, never attended the naval academy. But he thinks that schooling is a necessary element in the training of field men.

After being in charge of this district for a few weeks, Pennington decided that it sometimes is useless to raid a distillery unless a conviction is later forthcoming.

"Agents will be taught above all," he says, "to get the facts and then present them in court intelligently. Many of the good investigators make the poorest kind of witnesses when presenting their cases in court."

For this reason, W. H. McNaughten, head of the legal department of the prohibition unit, is one of the principal instructors in the school.

The big task of supervising issuance of permits to breweries and drug stores, calls for more intensive training in the legal direction.

Above all, Pennington will see to it that none of his subordinates gets the idea that prohibition enforcement work is synonymous with reforming, he announces.

"We want all our agents to be as courteous as possible in the performance of their duties."

"We want them to understand that their job is law enforcement. We are not reformers," Pennington said in discussing the school.

Pennington is the third administrator to hold office in this district since the "Andrews Plan" of enforcement went into effect last September.

His predecessors were Fred C. Baird, right-hand man to Judge Elbert H. Gary of the United States Steel Corporation, who resigned after nine months for "business reasons," and Edgar R. Ray, resignation after one month of tacked on the entire enforcement machinery.

Sayre's Drug Store

NOT SO TIRED AT NIGHT

An Ode to a Headache!

When you're bean feelin' chucky and fuzzy and tite, when your temples throb and you can't see right, when a pain starts shootin' from ear to ear just stick on your hat and dash in here! Cause I've got some stuff that'll cure it ole dear! Good eh?

That "Song At Twilight"

It can be the EXACT one you WANT! When you "tune in" with an Orthophonic Victrola you get WHAT you want—not some fool line of talk on how to increase the size of oysters by teaching them calisthenics. Our records offer an enormously wide variety—prices from 49c to $2.00. Orthophonic Victrolas from $85.00 to $350.00.

Flies Are Out a Style!

They used to be looked upon as a necessary evil and large round oysters were hurled at them freely. Then came the sticky paper era and NOW comes Fly Tox which seems to US the most perfect system of fly annihilation we can imagine. Costs 50c for enuf to kill 9,869,392 adult flies.

Health is Not ALWAYS a Gift!

Health is like money—it can be earned, saved and accumulated. If it is a gift its one you can make to yourself. And nothing proves good health QUICKER than SPEED! You can HAVE speed if you use Rexall Hypophosphites. Tonic reasonably regular. This we KNOW!

We've just discovered the BEST thing about these new fixtures in our store! Splendid for US here in the store and equally fine for YOU folks.

It's their CONVENIENCE!

We can wait on just about TWICE as many people with only about HALF the effort. In other words we can save YOUR time and OUR energy! Both highly desirable features certainly.

The OLD store was a bit too lengthy I see now and I regret that I didn't outfit myself and assistants with pedometers so's I could actually KNOW how many miles we had to walk in a day's time. It would a been a plenty.

The fixture people told us this would be the case but we never realized what it would mean until now we've fixed up.

I don't reckon this is particularly interesting to you all but I should be worth your attention to know that we can give you better SERVICE—QUICKER!

DOC SAYRE.

Shorty Says:-

Ain't Doc the limit? Claims it's going to be easier to work here than right on top of this claims he can wait on TWICE as many people as he could before! There's SOME catch in this that I haven't got yet. Jake says there's a catch in it too but he hasn't doped it out yet. Awful nice LOOKIN' store tho.

Much More Thorough Than a Cat!

It's a sporting proposition with a cat but with Rat Nip rat poison it's PLAIN RUIN! And once they've got some of it (the cats that is) they dig out to the house and die outside—which is as you want it?

For Blowing!

It's comforting to know that the handkerchiefs you get here never had a hand other than your OWN—on them! They're called Hank-O-Chief, sell from 10c to 2 for 25c, come in a variety of color combination and don't make Nobody mad.

Nine Ideas For Your Camera!

1. The old place before it was remodeled. 2. The old car you traded for a 1927 model. 3. That row of hollyhocks. 4. That old dress you made over. 5. The kids first lemonade stand. 6. His birthday cake. 7. Those tomato vines. 8. That bass. 9. The new golfing outfit. (We develop, finish and SELL films—also sell cameras.)

Police and Fountain News

No one ever heard of a soda water "bun" In spite of that fact that they're full of fun No one ever heard of a person getting tide When they put soda water on their diet.

So bounce in often to our soda water grill Order what you like and drink your fill There'll be no trouble from tummies or cops Very VERY different from a DRINK full of hops Which I could name if I cared to.

Helpless!

They can't TELL, you, they can't WRITE you about their troubles! All they can do is pucker up their round little faces and holler! And certainly they're important issues in THIS store! Our Baby department includes not only a full line of foods but rubber diapers, rubber nipples, bottles, toys, Talcum, soap, and ALL at right price.
